U.S. Expands Troop Pullout

Copter Mishap Kills 9 Yanks In Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Two U.S. Army helicopters collided in the air and crashed in flames today at the Bien Hoa Air Base. Nine Americans were killed and two seriously injured.

A 10th American, a Marine, was killed when Viet Cong guerrillas and U.S. Marines fought a grenade battle before dawn six miles west of the Chu Lai beachhead 52 miles south of Da Nang. It was the first serious attack on the Marine defenses at Chu Lai, where U.S. Navy Seabees are building a jet airstrip.

Ten Marines were wounded, two of them seriously. Six Viet Cong bodies were found and a wounded guerrilla was captured.

The two helicopters collided about 50 to 100 feet up and crashed in an open patch of ground 200 yards from the helicopter area of the Bien Hoa base 15 miles north of Saigon. Both were troop-carrying craft attached to the 118th U.S. Army Helicopter Company.

Eight of the occupants were killed outright and the ninth died three hours later in the base hospital.

Aviators from the company rushed to the scene and pulled the three injured men from the wreckage.

Ohio GI Handed 12-Year Sentence By German Court

ANSBACH, Germany (AP) — An Ohio soldier was sentenced to 12 years in a German prison today for the murder of a 17-year-old German girl.

A German court found SP 4. James T. Buckner, 27, of Girard, Ohio, guilty of killing Louise Margaret Regler Sept. 22, 1963. He said she resisted his advances. He strangled the girl and then ran over her body several times with his car.

The court said it was handing down a mild sentence because Buckner did not have complete possession of his faculties when the killing occurred. A doctor testified that the soldier is subject to fainting spells and has a condition bordering on epilepsy.

As the trial ended, Buckner, in tears, asked the girl's mother who was in court, to forgive him.

Miffed Medics Stage 'Heal In'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A county official says resident physicians and interns at Los Angeles County General Hospital, miffed by a pay raise of less than $10 a month, are flooding the huge facility with patients.

He says the doctors are calling it a "heal in."

County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, who said the protest was described to his office Thursday, called it "a deliberate plan to disrupt good hospital service."

Hahn said the strategy among the 200 interns and 350 physicians was to admit as many patients as possible, and at the same time, retain patients longer than normally would be the case.

Dr. Richard Boggs, president of the intern-resident protest group, declined to discuss the situation with newsmen.

Hospital administrators said there was a 25 per cent increase in admissions Thursday and a 40 per cent drop in discharges. But county officials said steps were being taken by administrative officials for forestall the effort. They termed the campaign "curbed."

Hahn said a delegation from the Interns and Residents Association visited his office and announced that a "heal in" was in progress.

The 3,300-bed facility is one of the largest general hospitals in the nation.

Dr. William Evans, the hospital's medical director, said the protest group promised "that nothing will be done which interferes with the best care available to patients."

The doctors had asked for a flat rate of $400 monthly for interns and a sliding scale for resident physicians rising over a five-year period from $510 to $713 a month.

But under a salary ordinance approved Thursday, interns will get $330 to start and $337 after six months of service — plus room and board. Resident physicians, starting July 1, will receive from $435 to $645 a month,

Johnson Warns More Latin Terror Possible

WACO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson announced today he is issuing orders to withdraw 1,700 American military men from the Dominican Republic.

But he warned at the same time that in the hemisphere "we can expect more efforts at triumph by terror and conquest through chaos." And he called for "new international machinery geared to meet fast-moving events."

In an address prepared for commencement exercises at Baylor University — once headed by his great grandfather George Washington Baines — Johnson said, "When forces of freedom move slowly — whether on political, economic or military fronts — the forces of slavery and subversion move rapidly and decisively."

The president said that one of the lessons learned during the past four weeks in the Dominican Republic is that "it is clear that we need new international machinery geared to meet fast-moving events."

"When hours can decide the fate of generations, the moment of decision must become the moment of action," he added.

The 1,700 troops the President said are being withdrawn are in addition to 1,600 he said have been withdrawn over the past two days.

And Johnson said he has instructed Lt. Gen. Bruce Palmer, commander of U.S. forces in the Dominican Republic, "to discuss possible further withdrawals" with Gen. Hugh Panasco Alvim of Brazil, commander of the Organization of American States forces in the revolt torn Caribbean country.

Million-Dollar Swindler Is Given Light Sentence

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Anthony (Tino) DeAngelis was sentenced today to 10 years in federal prison today for his part in one of history's biggest commercial frauds — a multimillion-dollar vegetable oil swindle that rocked Wall Street.

He was sentenced under a new federal law, however, which could make him eligible for parole after serving three months in prison.

DeAngelis, 49, a former Bronx N.Y., butcher, listened impassively as Federal Judge Reynier J. Wortendyke passed sentence.

DeAngelis, 49, built a vegetable-oil refining empire that collapsed 19 months ago with a crash that resounded through banks, brokerage firms and commodity companies on both sides of the Atlantic.

He had been free on bail since pleading guilty Jan. 8 to three federal counts of circulating forged warehouse receipts. He also admitted conspiring to circulate $100 million worth of fraudulent warehouse receipts over five years.

The maximum possible sentence is 35 years in jail and a $35,000 fine.

The warehouse receipts, normally used in business as certificates of collateral to borrow money, listed huge stocks of vegetable oil that DeAngelis did not have. The receipts wound up in bank vaults across the country and overseas. And they served to generate a flood of borrowed money.

When DeAngelis' Allied Crude Vegetable Oil Refining Corp. plunged into bankruptcy on Nov. 19, 1963, it was found the warehouse receipts he used for loans claimed to represent more vegetable oil than the government had listed for the entire nation.

Creditors who flocked to Allied Crude's Bayonne, N.Y., plant to claim the food oil on which they had loaned money instead found mostly empty storage tanks or tanks filled with salt water. Of 1.8 billion pounds of commodities supposed to be in the tanks, only 60 million pounds were there.

The victims included DeAngelis' chief broker, Ira Haupt & Co., a prominent firm that was liquidated by the New York Stock Exchange. The exchange put up $9.5 million to save many of Haupt's 20,000 other customers from loss of cash or securities they had left with the firm.

American Express Co., was hit with $144 million in claims by holders of warehouse receipts. A subsidiary, American Express Warehousing Ltd., had the job of guarding commodities stored in the tanks and of issuing warehouse receipts.

American Express Warehousing was one of about 15 firms that filed for bankruptcy as the scandal unfolded.

Course of Dominican Conflict Is Retraced

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — If U.S. Marines had not landed here Communist police might now be patrolling the narrow streets of this historic Caribbean capital and Communist ruler might sit in the National Palace. Or perhaps not.

But the United States did intervene in this battered capital a month ago today and there are still about 20,000 American troops on hand.

They and more than 1,000 Latin-American troops, forming an unprecedented Inter-American Force, hold a buffer zone separating rival junta and rebel factions while diplomats and politicians seek a way to settle the interrupted revolution peacefully.

The United States this week began trimming its forces by withdrawing the first Marines to land. Their places were taken by Latin-American contingents from Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Brazil. A Brazilian contingent of about 1,200 men is still arriving.

From President Johnson on down, U.S. officials are still convinced that in the first days of revolutionary violence that broke over Santo Domingo April 24, there was considerably more than a 50 per cent chance that Communist leaders would seize power.

But still the question of what would have happened if the United States had not sent troops is highly controversial.

No one has accused the rebel leader, Col. Francisco Caamaño Deno, of being a Communist. President Johnson's charge in a speech May 2 was that "Communist conspirators" had gotten control of politicians. Historians will debate the issue for years.

That many more people would have been killed without U.S. intervention is, however, much less debatable. For following the Saturday on which the junta government of President Donald Reid Cabral was overthrown, many army officers and troops defected from government force to join the uprising. Armies were opened and arms flowed to the civilians in the rebel-controlled streets.

For days after that, bullet machine guns spewed death at the intersections, and armed bands roamed the business and residential sections looking for enemies. Snipers abounded on the rooftops and behind windows.

This all really began years ago.

In 1916, with a major internal upheaval threatening to spill into civil war, President Woodrow Wilson sent in Marines to pacify a country that might become involved in German action in World War I.

The Marines stayed until 1924, and, some Dominican claim, continuing U.S. influences opened the door of power to Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, whose dictatorship began in 1930 and ran until 1961, when he was assassinated.

In 1963 Juan Bosch became the country's first freely elected president since 1924. He inherited an unbalanced political and economic situation.

Bosch tried to build — by methods many say were overhasty or politically inept — a democratic structure of government. He was overthrown when the traditional ruling classes and the military felt themselves threatened by a new constitution. The succeeding U.S.-backed junta of President Reid Cabral ran afoul of severe economic problem, got caught in the same military-civilian quarrels that had trapped Bosch, and fell also in late April.

Pawnbroker Takes In Own Stolen TV Set

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — When pawnbroker Clarence Rosenstein found his portable television set at home missing, along with $40 in cash he took another look at the set he had taken in for $40 at his shop a few hours earlier. Turned out to be his own.

Charles Walter Burkes, 32, unaware he was pawning the pawnbroker's own set, had given Rosenstein his correct name and address. He was jailed on burglary charges.

Faulty Battery May Delay Space Flight of Gemini

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A bad battery cell today forced postponement of a practice flight for next week's orbital mission by astronauts James McDivitt and Edward White. Officials said there was a possibility the trouble could delay the June 3 launching.

Mission director Christopher C. Kraft Jr., said a decision whether to postpone the astronauts' trip would be made late Saturday or Sunday after the battery had been changed and several evaluation tests had been made.

The battery problem turned up today shortly after McDivitt and White began running through a rehearsal for their four-day orbital trip.

The battery is located in an equipment section attached to the base of the Gemini 4 spacecraft. It is one of four similar batteries which provide power to vehicle systems during flight.

Kraft said: "We could fly the entire Gemini 4 mission despite the loss of one battery cell. But we would rather change the battery."

To do this, the spacecraft will have to be lifted a few feet above the Titan 2 rocket to which it has been mated for several weeks.

"This will require disconnecting several bolts and electrical connections," Kraft said that it was hoped that the battery could be replaced tonight and the simulated flight rescheduled Saturday.

"Then," he said, "we will re-evaluate the remaining schedule time for the spacecraft, the launch vehicle, the Mission Control Center in Houston and the world network and support requirements."

Officials said there is some extra time in the programming that might enable them to meet the June 3 launch date.

They said the simulated flight that was called off today originally had not been scheduled until Monday.

McDivitt and White, both Air Force majors, are to take the Gemini 4 spacecraft aloft for 97 hours and 50 minutes, the longest man-in-space flight yet scheduled by the United States.

Early in the flight, White is to emerge from the orbiting capsule and float in space, at the end of a tether, for about 12 minutes.

The primary purpose of the flight will be to determine how well the astronauts and spacecraft systems will stand long exposure to space weightlessness.

During the simulated mission today, McDivitt and White were to sit in a spacecraft simulator and run through everything they are to do from time the countdown reached 30 minutes and then "run through procedures for the 6 minutes of Titan 2-powered flight."

After that they were to practice some of the highlights of the flight.

India Mine Blast Takes High Toll

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A tremendous pre-dawn explosion ripped through a coal mine near the eastern Indian town of Dhanbad today, killing 200 miners and killing or trapping perhaps 200 more.

The Ministry of Mines in New Delhi gave the figure of 200 known killed and said the death toll might reach 400.

Reports from the scene said the force of the explosion was so great that a blast shot up the mine shaft and killed men working on the surface.

One Indian newsmen at Dhanbad said an engine room and nearby office on the surface had been devastated by the blast.

The entire community extends best wishes to the young grads for continued success. We feel they have the ability to cope with tasks ahead — just as they did in completing their primary and secondary educational requirements.

Area merchants and professional people offer special recognition to these young people in today's Herald. The edition is in tribute to the graduates. The outstanding efforts of their teachers and instructors deserve similar honor.

THE HERALD will not be published Monday, in observance of Memorial Day. Although the tribute day to veterans actually falls on Sunday, most businesses and governing offices will observe the holiday on Monday.

Ohioan Plans Own Funeral For June 6

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gerald McKinney is still dead serious about having his funeral June 6.

McKinney is the 42-year-old Springfield factory worker who has been planning his funeral in advance, saying "I want my friends to give me the roses while I live."

He was in Columbus today, contacting friends and making final arrangements for the funeral which will be held at the Scioto County Fairgrounds near Minford.

McKinney, in a checkered sport coat topped off with a black bow tie, talked seriously about the funeral, which should be anything but a "dead" affair.

Final music plans are made. McKinney said there will be banjo pickers, guitar players, an organist and singers.

Among the songs he's selected are the "Yellow Rose of Texas," "Red Roses for a Blue Lady" and "My Wild Irish Rose." He said he likes roses.

But McKinney has emphasized that he plans to enjoy his funeral as much as anyone and that having the last rites before death is something he has just wanted to do.

McKinney explained it this way: "My grandfather died it (in 1896) and my father was going to." But McKinney's father died before he could have his funeral—in advance.

He makes no estimate of how many persons will attend, but says "the public is invited."

Loyalty Probe Is Concluded

Panel Secures Little Testimony

CHICAGO (AP) — The House Committee on Un-American Activities has concluded three days of hearings on communism in Illinois, marked by an abundance of demonstrations and a lack of testimony.

Only two witnesses, both FBI informers, testified. Nine others pleaded constitutional protection against testifying or walked out of the hearing room.

During the final day of hearings Thursday, police and federal marshals arrested 38 demonstrators, some for singing in the hearing room, others for raising a commotion outside the building. Two demonstrators suffered head cuts trying to break through police lines.

Rep. Edwin E. Willis, D-La., committee chairman, said the committee had received a rounded picture of Communist activities.

Willis said the committee had acquired additional information of Communist operations among youths and peace groups and of agitation in the housing field and in civil rights groups.

Willis said committee contempt action would be recommended against two witnesses who walked out Thursday after refusing to testify.

One of the two witnesses, Dr. Jeremiah Stamler, 45, prominent heart disease specialist, was characterized by the committee counsel as "one of those in charge of setting up the Communist party underground" in the early 1950s.

The committee counsel, Alfred M. Nittle, raised the point while questioning another witness, Laura Bough, 34, of San Francisco. She refused to answer.

When Dr. Stamler went on the witness stand, he gave his name and address, but refused further testimony.

Rhodes Tries To Woo Beer Plant to Ohio

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — The president of Anheuser-Busch Breweries said today Ohio is considered favorably as the site of a new $50 million plant.

President August A. Busch Jr. made the announcement after a conference here with Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio and top aides seeking new industry for the Buckeye State.

The brewery president said he expected a decision on a site within 60 days. He said about 500 would be employed "on the first go-around."

Rhodes and his aides also had conferences with officials of a major fruit processor and electrical parts manufacturer.

Development Director Fred Neuenschwander said all the firms eyeing Ohio locations are major employers who would give the state's economy a big boost.

Rhodes, Neuenschwander, Agriculture Director John Stackhouse and John Dunlap Jr., of Williamsport, Pickaway County livestock raiser, went into closed conference with company officials immediately after arrival.

Neuenschwander described the aerial junket as a followup to a St. Louis visit a year ago by about 25 industrial developers, called "Rhodes' Raiders."

The trip followed by less than two weeks a Rhodes' visit to New York which resulted in an agreement for an Ohio location by a metal fabricating firm.

The "raiders" called on 2,400 companies throughout the nation last year.

Johnson Warns More Latin Terror Possible

WACO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson announced today he is issuing orders to withdraw 1,700 American military men from the Dominican Republic.

But he warned at the same time that in the hemisphere "we can expect more efforts at triumph by terror and conquest through chaos." And he called for "new international machinery geared to meet fast-moving events."

In an address prepared for commencement exercises at Baylor University — once headed by his great grandfather George Washington Baines — Johnson said, "When forces of freedom move slowly — whether on political, economic or military fronts — the forces of slavery and subversion move rapidly and decisively."

The president said that one of the lessons learned during the past four weeks in the Dominican Republic is that "it is clear that we need new international machinery geared to meet fast-moving events."

"When hours can decide the fate of generations, the moment of decision must become the moment of action," he added.

The 1,700 troops the President said are being withdrawn are in addition to 1,600 he said have been withdrawn over the past two days.

And Johnson said he instructed Lt. Gen. Bruce Palmer, commander of U.S. forces in the Dominican Republic, "to discuss possible further withdrawals" with Gen. Hugh Panasco Alvim of Brazil, commander of the Organization of American States forces in the revolt torn Caribbean country.

Johnson said the necessity for quick action is one of "the new

Ohioan Plans Own Funeral For June 6

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gerald McKinney is still dead serious about having his funeral June 6.

McKinney is the 42-year-old Springfield factory worker who has been planning his funeral in advance, saying "I want my friends to give me the roses while I live."

He was in Columbus today, contacting friends and making final arrangements for the funeral which will be held at the Scioto County Fairgrounds near Minford.

McKinney, in a checkered sport coat topped off with a black bow tie, talked seriously about the funeral, which should be anything but a "dead" affair.

Final music plans are made. McKinney said there will be banjo pickers, guitar players, an organist and singers.

Among the songs he's selected are the "Yellow Rose of Texas," "Red Roses for a Blue Lady" and "My Wild Irish Rose." He said he likes roses.

But McKinney has emphasized that he plans to enjoy his funeral as much as anyone and that having the last rites before death is something he has just wanted to do.

McKinney explained it this way: "My grandfather did it (in 1896) and my father was going to." But McKinney's father died before he could have his funeral—in advance.

He makes no estimate of how many persons will attend, but says "the public is invited."

Chicago Education Chief Keeps Job

CHICAGO (AP) — Efforts by civil rights groups to force the ouster of Dr. Benjamin C. Willis as superintendent of Chicago's public schools have ended in failure.

The Board of Education voted 7-4 Thursday to rehire him until his 65th birthday — on Dec. 23, 1966.

The board — under pressure from groups both favoring and opposing Willis — made its decision during a five-hour closed meeting. Willis was present for the final two hours. He will continue to receive $48,500 a year under the contract, effective Sept. 1.

Special Bonus Proposed To Lure Re-enlistments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is proposing a special bonus to lure men with critical skills into re-enlisting in the armed services.

The bonus system, recommended to Congress in a little-noticed section of a pay-increase bill, could give some corporals and specialists as much as $6,300, depending on the importance of their skills.

Two years ago, Congress ignored a similar Defense Department proposal.

However, top officials hope the Senate and House will be more receptive this time because of the increasing difficulty in holding trained men.

The plight of the Navy was pointed up several weeks ago when Secretary Paul H. Nitze appealed to officers and men whose active-duty tours were running out to extend their service three or six months. Navy officials said it is too early to measure the response to Nitze's plea.

Defense Department studies have listed inadequate pay as a major factor in the inability to keep men trained in electronics and other important skills.

The Defense Department already has a re-enlistment bonus system in effect. The new special system aimed at the highly skilled would be superimposed on it.

Under the standard system, a man completing his first enlistment and signing up for another hitch is entitled to one month's pay multiplied by the number of years of re-enlistment.

Thus, a man who signed up for an additional six-year hitch would get a bonus of six months' pay.

On later enlistments, the bonus would be smaller. An absolute limit of $2,000 is applied to such standard bonuses over a 20-year career.

The new proposal would apply only to the first re-enlistment.

It would authorize a bonus four times the standard re-enlistment bonus, in addition to the regular bonus.

In this case, a man with an important skill would get a payment equal to five months' pay multiplied by the number of years of his new enlistment — a maximum of 30 extra months' pay.

realities" made apparent by the Dominican situation.

The President has been criticized in some quarters for not advising other hemisphere nations before announcing his decision April 28 to send military forces to the Dominican Republic.

Today, in discussing the Communist threat within the hemisphere, Johnson said:

"We know that when a Communist group seeks to exploit misery, the entire free inter-American system is put in deadly danger. We also know that these dangers can be found today in many of our lands. There is no trouble anywhere these evil forces will not try to turn to their advantage. We can expect more efforts at triumph by terror and conquest through chaos."

The President, speaking of U.S. goals, said, "We want for the peoples of this hemisphere only what they want for themselves — liberty, justice, dignity, a better life."

Johnson said that more than a few agitators were needed "to bring on the tragic and cruel bloodshed in the Dominican Republic."

He said they had "additional help and a deeper cause."

The President associated the "deeper cause" with areas where the poor and the oppressed find difficulty entering the gates of opportunity.

In this situation, he said, the United States must try to "narrow the gap between the rich nations and the poor — and between the rich people and the poor within each nation."

Johnson called this "the heart of the purpose of the United States."

In urging new international machinery, Johnson gave no details of what he had in mind.

However, it was believed he felt that the multinational force now trying to keep peace and promote stability in the Dominican Republic might serve as a precedent for inter-American efforts if other nations face similar upheavals.

Johnson emphasized that "for the first time in history the Organization of American States has created and sent to the soil of an American nation an international peace-keeping force."

He said "that may be the greatest achievement of all."

St. Joseph Festival Set Wednesday

St. Joseph's annual Lawn Festival and Spaghetti Dinner will be held Wednesday.

The dinner will be served in the basement of the church between 5 and 7:30 p. m. It will feature real Italian style spaghetti and meat balls, salad, rolls and soft drink.

Mrs. Harry Montavon said two Italian women from Columbus will prepare the dinner "just like last year." The cooks will make approximately 1,300 meat balls and initial plans call for 120 pounds of spaghetti to be cooked during the evening.

The festival will feature many concessions, games, refreshments and pony rides for the kiddies.

A HIGHLIGHT of the festival will also be the awarding of prizes to winners in the combination ticket sales. The grand prize will be a choice of a refrigerator, washer, dryer, dish washer, air conditioner, range, set of auto tires, television set or a 45-piece set of Lenox china. Second and third prizes will also be awarded.

Proceeds from the festival and dinner go for the support of St. Joseph's school. The annual event is one of the major means for operation of the school and transportation for the more than 250 students that attend classes at St. Joseph's.

"Wear A Poppy" Urges Legion Auxiliary

"Wear A Poppy to show that you remember!"

This will be the appeal of American Legion Auxiliary Poppy Day volunteers to the people of Circleville on Poppy Day, May 29, states Mrs. Walter N. Arledge the Auxiliary's Poppy Chairman.

"Some of the finest young men of our city gave their lives in America's defense during the three wars of the past half century," Mrs. Arledge said. "We should not lose the inspiration of their service and sacrifice, but should keep their memory bright. We owe today's free America to them and all the others like them who stood between America and the enemy in time of war."

"Wearing a poppy on Poppy Day is the individual act of tribute to the nation's war dead," continue Mrs. Arledge. "Pinning on a poppy is a very little to do, but it is a significant gesture showing that we remember and are grateful."

"When we put on a poppy, some of us will be thinking of a certain boy we knew who went off to war and never returned. Yes, some will be thinking of their own sons, husbands, brothers. We can hope that they will find some comfort in the poppies of remembrance glowing on every coat. We can hope that everyone will understand the meaning of the poppy and wear the little memorial flower with pride."

Poppies will be distributed throughout the city by women and girls of Hall-Adkins Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, working as volunteers under Mrs. Arledge's leadership. The little flowers are replicas of the wild poppies of France and Belgium which bloomed so brightly on the battlefields and cemeteries of World War I. They have been made by disabled war veterans working in hospitals and workrooms throughout the country. —ad.

Johnson called this "the heart of the purpose of the United States."

In urging new international machinery, Johnson gave no details of what he had in mind. However, it was believed he felt that the multination force now trying to keep peace and promote stability in the Dominican Republic might serve as a precedent for inter-American efforts if other nations face similar upheavals.

Johnson emphasized that "for the first time in history the Organization of American States has created and sent to the soil of an American nation an international peace-keeping force."

He said "that may be the greatest achievement of all."

St. Joseph Festival Set Wednesday

St. Joseph's annual Lawn Festival and Spaghetti Dinner will be held Wednesday.

The dinner will be served in the basement of the church between 5 and 7:30 p. m. It will feature real Italian style spaghetti and meat balls, salad, rolls and soft drink.

Mrs. Harry Montavon said two Italian women from Columbus will prepare the dinner "just like last year." The cooks will make approximately 1,300 meat balls and initial plans call for 120 pounds of spaghetti to be cooked during the evening.

The festival will feature many concessions, games, refreshments and pony rides for the kiddies.

A HIGHLIGHT of the festival will also be the awarding of prizes to winners in the combination ticket sales. The grand prize will be a choice of a refrigerator, washer, dryer, dish washer, air conditioner, range, set of auto ties, television set or a 45-piece set of Lenox china. Second and third prizes will also be awarded.

Proceeds from the festival and dinner go for the support of St. Joseph's school. The annual event is one of the major means for operation of the school and transportation for the more than 250 students that attend classes at St. Joseph's.

"Wear A Poppy" Urges Legion Auxiliary

"Wear A Poppy to show that you remember!"

This will be the appeal of American Legion Auxiliary Poppy Day volunteers to the people of Circleville on Poppy Day, May 29, states Mrs. Walter N. Arledge the Auxiliary's Poppy Chariman.

"Some of the finest young men of our city gave their lives in America's defense during the three wars of the past half century," Mrs. Arledge said. "We should not lose the inspiration of their service and sacrifice, but should keep their memory bright. We owe today's free America to them and all the others like them who stood between America and the enemy in time of war."

"Wearing a poppy on Poppy Day is the individual act of tribute to the nation's war dead," continued Mrs. Arledge. "Pinning on a poppy is very little to do, but it is a significant gesture showing that we remember and are grateful."

"When we put on a poppy, some of us will be thinking of a certain boy we knew who went off to war and never returned. Yes, some will be thinking of their own sons, husbands, brothers. We can hope that they will find some comfort in the poppies of remembrance glowing on every coat. We can hope that everyone will understand the meaning of the poppy and wear the little memorial flower with pride."

Poppies will be distributed throughout the city by women and girls of Hall-Adkins Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, working as volunteers under Mrs. Arledge's leadership. The little flowers are replicas of the wild poppies of France and Belgium which bloomed so brightly on the battlefields and cemeteries of World War I. They have been made by disabled war veterans working in hospitals and workrooms throughout the country.

Fresh School Bus Bill Is Offered Solons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Holdouts for controversial school bus legislation have attempted to rekindle the smoldering issue in the Ohio General Assembly.

They introduced a new bill Thursday but it went almost unnoticed in a touchy Senate wrangle over merits of a constitutional resolution to ban Communists from holding public office.

Senators finally brushed the resolution aside in a 10-16 vote.

Sen. Tennyson Guyer, R-Hancock and four other senators offered the school bus proposal, sixth of the session designed to extend bus transportation to pupils of private and church-affiliated schools.

They said their measure represents a compromise to remove opposition claims that the state cannot legally provide such service to nonpublic schools.

Under provisions of the bill, a Division of Transportation would be created in the Highway Safety Department to "provide safe transportation to students attending elementary and high schools in Ohio."

Senate Democratic Leader Frank W. King, D-Lucas, led the floor fight against the proposed amendment on communism, asserting "it is foolish and meaningless and a waste of taxpayers' money to put it on the statewide ballot."

Sen. Fred L. Hoffman, R-Hamilton, sponsored the proposal.

Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-Miami, quelled what might have erupted into a hostile exchange between King and Guyer.

Guyer, supporting the proposal, brought King to his feet when he asserted: "A vote against this resolution, in my opinion, would be counted as a vote in favor of Communists holding office."

"The same old game of McCarthyism," King retorted.

At that point, Gray reminded senators that the issue was not partisan and assured Democrats "No one in the majority party questions the loyalty of anyone in this chamber."

Gray then joined with two other Republicans, Sens. Charles W. Shalen Jr., and Robert E. Stockdale, and 13 Democrats to defeat the proposal.

In other business, the Senate passed four comparatively minor bills. They included proposals to ban noisy mufflers and establish marketing rights for agricultural associations and their members.

Among bills introduced in the Senate was a proposal to reappoint the State Senate and an emergency bill by Sen. Charles L. Pancake, D-Athens, to appropriate $69,000 for construction of a migrant labor camp in Northwestern Ohio.

At the same time the House completed passage of a Senate bill designed to attract migrant labor to Ohio. It would authorize farm trucks with out-of-state licenses to obtain a $20 Ohio license good for 100 days.

The House postponed action on a bill requiring suspension of driver licenses of minors caught drinking beer or whisky in auto-

Cincinnati Symphony Plans Tour Abroad

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra is going on its first world tour in 1966. It was announced Thursday the orchestra, conducted by Max Rudolf, was chosen by the State Department's Advisory Committee on the Arts to represent America on the 10-week trip.

The tour will include stops at one or two major European music festivals, and concerts in Lebanon, Israel, Turkey, Manila, Hong Kong, Formosa, Seoul and major Japanese cities.

mobiles. The measure was sent back to committee after Rep. Joseph F. Hiestand, R - Richmond, won approval of an amendment to include adults as well as minors.

Measures passed by the House and sent to the Senate would:

Increase from $100 to $500 the personal property tax deduction allowed for domestic animals.

Permit municipal and township firemen to answer calls outside their area.

Ban sale and manufacture of nonconforming traffic control devices except with Highway Department approval.

Create board of examiners for landscape architects.

Increase the penalty for carrying a concealed weapon to include a maximum of one year imprisonment for the first offense.

NEW YORK (AP) — The three major television networks once again, are gripped with space fever, a competitive disease requiring each sufferer to try to outdo the others in covering the journeys of the astronauts.

The four-day Gemini shot is scheduled for next Thursday morning and the television audience will receive its briefings earlier in special programs of all networks. NBC's "G-T4 Preview" will come on Tuesday night (9-10 EDT) while CBS "Gemini Preview" follows on Wednesday night (8-8:30 EDT) as does ABC's "Preview" on its "Scope" program (10:30-11).

On launch day, all networks will start their coverage at 7 a.m., about two hours before the planned take-off.

It is expected that all of the networks will stay with the story at least until 11 a.m., and longer if circumstances warrant. ABC, for instance, does not know — and will not — whether it will stay on the story for one orbit or three before returning to regular programming.

As usual, basic coverage of the launching is a prestige operation by the three networks with each assigning its top news staff men to reporting the running story and filling in the dull moments with assorted interviews and demonstrations. NBC will show the takeoff in color.

Once the Gemini-Titan mission is whirling around the globe, all networks plan hourly reports on its progress, plus more thorough updating during all news programs. In addition, each network will have a 15-minute special program nightly from 11:15 to 11:30 (EDT).

For the first time, a TV pool representative will be permitted to travel in the rescue helicopter when it goes to the astronauts after the Monday morning splashdown, so recovery pictures will be received sooner than before.

Cincy Opens Youth Opportunity Center

CINCINNATI (AP)—A Youth Opportunity Center was opened here Thursday as part of the nationwide war on poverty program to help unemployed youths.

Gov. James A. Rhodes and Harry Kranz of Washington, national director of Youth Center Operations, participated in the ceremonies.

Rhodes said Ohio has 1,000 young persons entering the labor market each week, and added "we don't want any young man or woman, regardless of race, color or creed, standing on a street corner, saying they can't work because they have no training."

Tullahoma Not Suburb

TULLAHOMA, Tenn. (AP) — Directors of the Tullahoma Chamber of Commerce have protested to Southern Bell Telephone Co. because the city's person-to-person long distance calls go through nearby Shelbyville.

The directors are unhappy because of what happens when a Tullahoma caller can't get his party in the distant city and must leave word.

The operator says, "Call operator so-and-so in Shelbyville and ask for Tullahoma..."

Industrialist Charles Folk says that makes Tullahoma "look like a very small town way out in the sticks" to someone a long way off.

"We should combat the effect which is developing to make Tullahoma a suburb of Shelbyville," Folk said.

It all started when Southern Bell moved the operators and switchboards to Shelbyville, where their functions were centralized with the advent of Direct Distance Dialing in the lower Middle Tennessee area last February.

Second place went to the Moose Patrol, Troop 52, and to the Bumblebee Patrol, Troop 205, sponsored by the Circleville Presbyterian Church.

The campfire skit competition was won by the Flaming Arrow Patrol of Troop 205. Second place went to the Hawk Patrol, Troop 155, sponsored by the Circleville First EUB Church. Third place was won by Apache Patrol of Troop 52.

NEW members tapped into the order of the Arrow were Darrel Goodman, Mike Neuding, David Leist, Jackie Robinson, Woody York, Carl Neuding, Charles Fullen, Roger McLaughlin.

Assisting Lawson with the camporee were Charles Lloyd, program chairman in charge of all camporee activities and master of ceremonies at the campfire; John Court, head of judging and awards committee; Jack Walter, in charge of the campfire; Hewitt Harmont.

The campfire program at the camporee was attended by approximately 50 spectators.

Three Colors In One Wood

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP)—Wood carver George Hartwig showed his unique set of carvings during a hobby show and attracted no little attention.

He carves unusual shapes and colorful pieces from the limbs of the diamond willow to make floor lamps, candlesticks and planters.

"The natural colors I bring out of this limb," he said,

"will be burnt orange, brown and white."

Hartwig, a retired metallurgical welder, enhances his carvings by following the natural outlines in the grain and knots of the limbs to emphasize the knarred beauty of the wood.

While on a trip to Alaska, he discovered the diamond willow which has three colors in one piece of wood.

CINCINNATI (AP)—A Youth Opportunity Center was opened here Thursday as part of the nationwide war on poverty program to help unemployed youths.

Gov. James A. Rhodes and Harry Kranz of Washington, national director of Youth Center Operations, participated in the ceremonies.

Rhodes said Ohio has 1,000 young persons entering the labor market each week, and added "we don't want any young man or woman, regardless of race, color or creed, standing on a street corner, saying they can't work because they have no training."

Tullahoma Not Suburb

TULLAHOMA, Tenn. (AP) — Directors of the Tullahoma Chamber of Commerce have protested to Southern Bell Telephone Co. because the city's person-to-person long distance calls go through nearby Shelbyville.

The directors are unhappy because of what happens when a Tullahoma caller can't get his party in the distant city and must leave word.

The operator says, "Call operator so-and-so in Shelbyville and ask for Tullahoma..."

Industrialist Charles Folk says that makes Tullahoma "look like a very small town way out in the sticks" to someone a long way off.

"We should combat the effect which is developing to make Tullahoma a suburb of Shelbyville," Folk said.

It all started when Southern Bell moved the operators and switchboards to Shelbyville, where their functions were centralized with the advent of Direct Distance Dialing in the lower Middle Tennessee area last February.

Three Colors In One Wood

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP)—Wood carver George Hartwig showed his unique set of carvings during a hobby show and attracted no little attention.

He carves unusual shapes and colorful pieces from the limbs of the diamond willow to make floor lamps, candlesticks and planters.

"The natural colors I bring out of this limb," he said,

"will be burnt orange, brown and white."

Hartwig, a retired metallurgical welder, enhances his carvings by following the natural outlines in the grain and knots of the limbs to emphasize the knarred beauty of the wood.

While on a trip to Alaska, he discovered the diamond willow which has three colors in one piece of wood.

NEW YORK (AP) — Both psychological and monetary weapons are being readied to ward off any letdown in Americans' confidence that prosperity is here to stay.

Government officials and agencies are now starting a chorus of warnings that people mustn't expect too much. They seek to prevent nervousness if the big upsurge in the early months of this year isn't duplicated in the next few months.

At the same time, new monetary stimulants for the economy are on order for this fall. One is the cut in excise taxes which Congress is pushing through speedily. Another is an increase in Social Security benefits this fall, just ahead of the rise in Social Security taxes Jan. 1.

The new money from the tax cut and the more generous payments to the growing number of retired is counted upon to boost consumer spending.

Government spending is going up, too. Some see more defense outlays in the making. Many of the anti-poverty programs are ripe for expansion.

Federal debt is due for another rise. It is now $316 billion but the Treasury says it will be $326 billion a year from now. Wall Street regards that as inflationary, however Washington may view it. Stock market observers say prices went up as a result of the Treasury's request that the debt limit be raised.

Business plans for expansion spending are revised upward steadily.

All these should help to insulate public confidence from any shock if there's a downturn this summer in economic statistics, or any slowdown in the rate of growth.

Stress is laid on the signs that 1965 as a whole is going to be a prosperous year, even if the rate of growth varies from quarter to quarter, as it usually does in any year.

Government agencies also are stressing that the big spurt ahead in the first quarter of 1965 was both unexpected and due in part to unusual circumstances. Always cited are the catch-up in auto sales after shortages due to last fall's strikes, and the build-up in steel inventories as a hedge against a possible strike in that key industry.

But even if some letdown develops in both industries, auto makers and steel producers alike are still expecting 1965's production and sales to set new highs for any one year.

A year ago government and private economists were worried there be a turnaround in the economy in the last half of 1965. Now few indeed expect that. What they're talking about now is further growth, but a less breathless one.

A HENPECKED EDITOR checked into his office with a king-sized bump on his noggin. "You guessed it," he told his conferees sourly. "My wife bopped me with a lamp again this morning."

"Why didn't you duck?" asked one friend. "I did," mourned the editor, "but she allowed for it."

St. Louis-born poet T. S. Eliot, after he graduated from Harvard, moved on to Oxford and soon became so English that even Englishmen found it hard to understand him. Before writing "The Waste Land" and becoming one of the world's greatest poets, he toiled briefly in Lloyd's Bank, where he appeared invariably impeccably attired in black coat, striped trousers, bowler, and tightly wrapped umbrella. One slip: he developed a fondness for a music hall ditty entitled "Too Many Gins Give the Ladies Double Chins" and hummed it so incessantly that the bank manager, if ever so diffidently, had to ask him to desist.

Mark Twain once was asked by a lady admirer if he believed in luck. "Certainly," he replied. "How else can you explain the success of those you loathe?"

Soldiers Train at Diem Outpost

By Hal Boyle

KHAM DUC, Viet Nam (AP) — Men in power often like to have a hideaway from the world where, in a proper setting, they can brood on their greatness.

The late President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Viet Nam had plans for a summer palace here 45 miles southwest of Da Nang.

A site was cleared atop one of the peaks that tower up to 6,000 feet in wild and lonely green beauty. As there are no good roads, everything had to be flown in.

At a cost of $4 million to $5 million, an airstrip was built on a 1,600-foot-high plateau. Construction was begun on the foundations for the palace. Then Diem was killed during a political coup, and his unfinished palace hideaway now stands as a mute memorial to his vanished dream.

On the plateau now is a training camp for civilian irregular defense groups, quasi-soldier volunteers whose job is to protect isolated villages from Viet Cong raids.

"We've got a pretty good set-up here," said 1st Lt. Niel Davidson, 4, Chicago, member of a small U. S. Army Special Forces team which helps train the Vietnamese and Montagnard tribesmen volunteers.

"It's pretty much likearrison life anywhere except when we go out on operations against the Viet Cong. But I'll say one thing — these are the most miserable mountains and Godawful jungles anyone on a patrol ever saw."

Davidson could be forgiven a bit of homesickness. He was married only three months ago, and a month later had to leave his bride to come to this isolated outpost in a strange land.

To an outsider these lonely circles of security in an enemy sea seem terribly vulnerable to mass attacks. The airstrips are their only lifeline to the outside world.

"We could be overrun," acknowledged the unworried lieutenant, "but they'd have to spend an awful lot of people to do it — more people than they can afford."

"After all, this place is pretty well defended with prepared positions, concrete bunkers and miles of barbed wire and mine fields."

Aside from the guerrillas, the mountains and plateaus abound in many forms of wild game including elephants and tigers. None of the Americans here has had a chance to go hunting of them, however.

Are arthritis and rheumatism the same?

Arthritis is a general term and has many subdivisions. Arthritis is an inflammation or change in any joint in the body.

Rheumatism, too is a vague term used to describe pains and aches and stiffness in the muscles, with or without deformity of the joints.

Rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis are probably the two major types of arthritis.

Injury, allergy and metabolic disturbances can also be responsible for some forms of arthritis.

What is rheumatoid arthritis? This form of arthritis is a chronic inflammatory process in the joints and the tissues around them. It occurs more frequently in women than in men and begins before the age of 35.

The exact cause is still unknown. An infection in the teeth, prostate and kidneys is considered by some as the focus responsible for rheumatoid arthritis.

Not all physicians adhere to the concept of "focus of infection."

Swelling, pain and tenderness of the joints of the fingers, wrists, knees and feet along with other generalized body complaints are associated with this form of arthritis.

How are these two forms of arthritis distinguished?

To the physician, the history of the onset, the signs and symptoms of both conditions are distinctly different. To the patient, tempted by self-diagnosis, the chances are great that the conclusion will be wrong and will produce unwarranted fears.

Laboratory examinations of the blood, cultures of the fingers, wrists, knees and feet along with other generalized body complaints are associated with this form of arthritis.

How are these major forms of arthritis treated?

All treatment is aimed at the relief of pain, the prevention of physical deformity, controlling complications and maintaining the body nutrition. Psychological support helps to attain the ultimate objective of rehabilitation of patients to make them self-sufficient.

Cortisone, in well-regulated doses, in addition to "gold compounds," and salicylates are used to control the discomfort and check the progress of the disease. There is great hope in the newer research that is being carried on all over the country.

To the physician, the history of the onset, the signs and symptoms of both conditions are distinctly different. To the patient, tempted by self-diagnosis, the chances are great that the conclusion will be wrong and will produce unwarranted fears.

Laboratory examinations of the blood, cultures of the blood and urine for bacteria, X-rays of the bones and joints are only part of the complicated tests that distinguish various forms of arthritis and indicate the nature of treatment.

What does a "consensus" President do when he has promised to support something that goes against the consensus? If he is a man of honor he lives up to the letter of his campaign obligation.

However, when Lyndon Johnson, in his long-awaited labor message, asked Congress to repeal section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act (the section which permits states to enact "right-to-work" laws), he must have been painfully aware of four widely separated polls. One of them, taken by his own favorite pollster, Oliver Quayle, of Bronxville, N. Y., showed him picking up new supporters among typical suburban Republicans who voted for Gold-water last Fall. The other polls, taken by Louis Harris, Gallup and Opinion Research some nine months apart, indicate a widespread displeasure with what labor unions have been doing.

As of last summer, the Harris poll had some sixty per cent of the people favoring retention of Section 14B. Opinion Research showed two out of three in favor of 14B's retention. And the Gallup poll, taken last March, showed 42 per cent thinking that the laws regulating labor unions are not tough enough, while only 10 per cent feel they are too strict. The "consensus", then is manifestly against repeal of 14B — and the President must be wondering what would happen to his growing popularity in northern suburbs if he were to make a really determined fight to force compulsory unionism on the nineteen states that have voted against it.

Privately, labor people are critical of the President for not putting more passion, more Texas oomph, into his request for the repeal of 14B. Senator Robert Kennedy of New York capped Lyndon Johnson by a fair country mile in the intensity of his own demand that the laws supporting voluntary unionism in nineteen states be knocked in the head by new federal legislation. But the speech made by Bobby Kennedy in favor of obliterating right-to-work laws played fast and loose with statistics to prove a case that would be popular in urban areas, and Johnson, who is trying to be a "consensus" President, for the whole nation could hardly have availed himself of the Kennedy computer and still face the voters in many places outside the industrial northeast.

It is indubitably true, as Senator Kennedy pointed out, that in "right-to-work" states the average wage for workers is lower than it happens to be in the states that permit compulsory unionism. But the Kennedy figures were arrived at by lumping together all labor, both rural farm help and city "production worker" labor. If Bobby Kennedy had left the states of the South which are just beginning to industrialize out of his reckoning, the case would be proved the other way. For the average weekly earnings in the seven "right-to-work" states of Arizona, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Nevada, South Dakota, and Utah are higher than the national average. Moreover, these states show a better average for their "production workers" (meaning the truly unionizable portion of their working populations) than Kennedy's own state of New York.

The statistics, in short, can be manipulated to prove anything. A partisan of the "right-to-work" laws might use the comparative statistics of New Mexico and Arizona to prove that labor does better under voluntary unionism than under compulsory unionism. Ten years ago the average weekly earnings of a worker in New Mexico were $85 as against Arizona's $82. But the Arizona figure for 1965 is $111, while New Mexico lags behind at $90. These figures prove just as much — and just as little — as Bobby Kennedy's figures. What is definite is that Arizona has industrialized faster than New Mexico over the past ten years. The fact that Arizona has a "right-to-work" law, while New Mexico permits union compulsion, might be cited as proof that voluntarism is a magnet for the sort of company that can afford good wages. But other factors — such as access to markets or the supply of water — may have had more to do with the change.

Anyway, the argument for voluntary unionism has nothing to do with statistics. The issue is freedom — and the view of the country, obviously reluctant despite the LBJ labor message, is that freedom is still the "national consensus."

Tractor Kills Man
SIDNEY, Ohio (AP)—Homer Kaufman, a worker on the Walter Baumgardner farm five miles east of here, was killed Thursday when the tractor he was operating overturned.

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's too quiet. It's like the end of an age.

There's been hardly a time in the past 30 years when the world didn't have at least one loud-mouth, or an eloquent man whose syllables sounded like the footsteps of history, or one who set fear and fury afire.

In these three decades there has been only one real comedian of top stature — Nikita Khrushchev — although he was funny in a grisly way.

But now there's no one in sight to fit any of those categories except Cuba's Fidel Castro, who can shout five hours at a stretch. He's been strangely silent lately, or almost silent.

No one has ever replaced the warm, calm, sometimes cutting, sometimes indignant, sometimes outraged tones of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who used words to reassure or arouse a responsive nation.

And perhaps never again in history will anyone become so truly and completely a spokesman for the very human and earnest convictions of mankind as Sir Winston Churchill.

There's no one quite like Benito Mussolini anymore. Even though he blew up his ego with his own homemade bicycle pump until he looked like an overdressed buffoon in a tailor shop, he had to be listened to.

Since he and his Fascist party held the Italians captive and enthralled, and since he was vicious and unpredictable, he could be a menace, as he proved.

Yet even he was outdone by that animal with a mustache, Adolf Hitler.

Indians worshipped Mohandas Gandhi, not only for what he said but what he did, and they respectfully followed Prime Minister Nehru, an intellectual whose words were examined in Europe, Asia and America as well as in India.

Today in this country there is probably not more than one American out of 10 who could say offhand that the Indian replacement for Gandhi and Nehru is Prime Minister Shastri, a self-effacing little man.

President Truman was not an orator. His greatness was in his vision and his decisiveness. President Eisenhower, who inherited a troubled country in 1952, made a career as keeper of the peace, which didn't need oratory so much as patience.

President Johnson talks a lot, either to newsmen trotting around his rose garden after him or on television. But his memorable words are few. Only three come easily to mind: "The great society."

His speeches have lacked literary excellence. Sometimes, even when he is most intense, he dilutes the intensity with homely touches, like references to "my little office" or his Texas boyhood.

And even when he explained sending troops into the Dominican Republic and Viet Nam he made no appeal to national emotion for it was not his intention to arouse but to reassure, which is how Eisenhower operated.

Johnson, as a figure in history, will probably be remembered, like Truman, more for what he does, or doesn't do, than for what he says.

President Kennedy, a much more fastidious phrasemaker, might have reached great heights as a speaker if in his time the country had had to endure great and prolonged crises. But it didn't.

His speeches, particularly the most idealistic ones, like his inaugural address, were so obviously worked over they often looked self-conscious, which made them harder to absorb than Churchill's or Roosevelt's.

Those two used a simpler touch that lay closer to the skin of experience.

French President Charles de Gaulle, master of language and eloquent these past 25 years when he chose to be, hardly talks in public any more, spreading his news conferences and public addresses far apart.

The French people of today seem placid. And De Gaulle is letting them stay that way.

Khrushchev, the most bouncy, ebullient, talkative, performing world leader of these past 30 years, is stone-silent now, shoved aside last October.

His two successors—Premier Alexi N. Kosygin and Party Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev — are like a couple of quiet butlers in a Soviet pantry.

But in the almost 10 years he did his act on the world stage Khrushchev was watched and listened to, whether he was banging his shoe on a desk at the United Nations or acting as funeral director for capitalism when he told it: "We will bury you."

Tractor Kills Man

SIDNEY, Ohio (AP)—Homer Kaufman, a worker on the Walter Baumgardner farm five miles east of here, was killed Thursday when the tractor he was operating overturned.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's too quiet. It's like the end of an age.

There's been hardly a time in the past 30 years when the world didn't have at least one loud-mouth, or an eloquent man whose syllables sounded like the footsteps of history, or one who set fear and fury afire.

In these three decades there has been only one real comedian of top stature — Nikita Khrushchev — although he was funny in a grisly way.

But now there's no one in sight to fit any of those categories except Cuba's Fidel Castro, who can shout five hours at a stretch. He's been strangely silent lately, or almost silent.

No one has ever replaced the warm, calm, sometimes cutting, sometimes indignant, sometimes outraged tones of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who used words to reassure or arouse a responsive nation.

And perhaps never again in history will anyone become so truly and completely a spokesman for the very human and earnest convictions of mankind as Sir Winston Churchill.

There's no one quite like Benito Mussolini anymore. Even though he blew up his ego with his own homemade bicycle pump until he looked like an overdressed buffoon in a tailor shop, he had to be listened to.

Since he and his Fascist party held the Italians captive and enthralled, and since he was vicious and unpredictable, he could be a menace, as he proved.

Yet even he was outdone by that animal with a mustache, Adolf Hitler.

Indians worshipped Mohandas Gandhi, not only for what he said but what he did, and they respectfully followed Prime Minister Nehru, an intellectual whose words were examined in Europe, Asia and America as well as in India.

Today in this country there is probably not more than one American out of 10 who could say offhand that the Indian replacement for Gandhi and Nehru is Prime Minister Shastri, a self-effacing little man.

President Truman was not an orator. His greatness was in his vision and his decisiveness. President Eisenhower, who inherited a troubled country in 1952, made a career as keeper of the peace, which didn't need oratory so much as patience.

President Johnson talks a lot, either to newsmen trotting around his rose garden after him or on television. But his memorable words are few. Only three come easily to mind: "The great society." His speeches have lacked literary excellence. Sometimes, even when he is most intense, he dilutes the intensity with homely touches, like references to "my little office" or his Texas boyhood.

And even when he explained sending troops into the Dominican Republic and Viet Nam he made no appeal to national emotion for it was not his intention to arouse but to reassure, which is how Eisenhower operated.

Johnson, as a figure in history, will probably be remembered, like Truman, more for what he does, or doesn't do, than for what he says.

President Kennedy, a much more fastidious phrasemaker, might have reached great heights as a speaker if in his time the country had had to endure great and prolonged crises. But it didn't.

His speeches, particularly the most idealistic ones, like his inaugural address, were so obviously worked over they often looked self-conscious, which made them harder to absorb than Churchill's or Roosevelt's.

Those two used a simpler touch that lay closer to the skin of experience.

French President Charles de Gaulle, master of language and eloquent these past 25 years when he chose to be, hardly talks in public any more, spreading his news conferences and public addresses far apart.

The French people of today seem placid. And De Gaulle is letting them stay that way.

Khrushchev, the most bouncy, ebullient, talkative, performing world leader of these past 30 years, is stone-silent now, shoved aside last October.

His two successors—Premier Alexi N. Kosygin and Party Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev—are like a couple of quiet butlers in a Soviet pantry.

But in the almost 10 years he did his act on the world stage Khrushchev was watched and listened to, whether he was banging his shoe on a desk at the United Nations or acting as funeral director for capitalism when he told it: "We will bury you."

His speeches, particularly the most idealistic ones, like his inaugural address, were so obviously worked over they often looked self-conscious, which made them harder to absorb than Churchill's or Roosevelt's.

Little Political Hay Seen For GOP in Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Influential Republicans agreed today there isn't much political hay in the overwhelming support Republican senators gave the voting-rights bill.

But the fact that 30 of the 32 GOP senators voted for passage Wednesday as the bill cleared the Senate should help get the party back in the mainstream of civil rights, said Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y.

"It gives us the opportunity to appeal again to civil rights supporters," he said. "It identifies ours as a responsible political party instead of the radical, states-rights party it was represented to be in the 1964 campaign."

However, Javits agreed with fellow Republican Sens. George D. Aiken of Vermont and John G. Tower of Texas, who said in separate interviews they do not believe Republican support of the legislation will win Negro voters away from the Democrats.

Aiken, senior Republican in Senate service, said he doesn't believe Republican backing for the bill will get much attention from the voters or will yield any material political benefits.

"Our Madison Avenue division is not very strong and what we do doesn't get advertised effectively," Aiken said. "I don't think our support of the bill is going to make any difference politically, one way or the other."

Tower, one of two Republicans who voted against the measure — the other was Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina — said he would have supported it if the Senate had not rejected an amendment he offered to bring the bill more in line with a substitute that House Republicans are backing. Instead of being aimed at specific Southern states, the substitute would provide for federal registrars when 25 persons in a state or county complained of racial discrimination.

"By voting as they did, the Republicans showed that they wanted some kind of bill," Tower said. "But I think the political effect will be negligible because this will be known as a Democratic administration bill."

NO ELEMENT OF CHANCE

"Calculated risk" seems to be a popular phrase for old-fashioned "gamble." But there's no place for either in preparing or dispensing pharmaceuticals.

Ever notice the letters U.S.P. or N.F. on a medicine label? The letters represent two official books that are recognized by federal law — the United States Pharmacopoeia and the National Formulary.

Together, they are the pharmacist's "bible." They give approved standards of the quality, purity, and potency of most medicinal agents.

4 Local Students To Be Graduated At Bishop Flaget

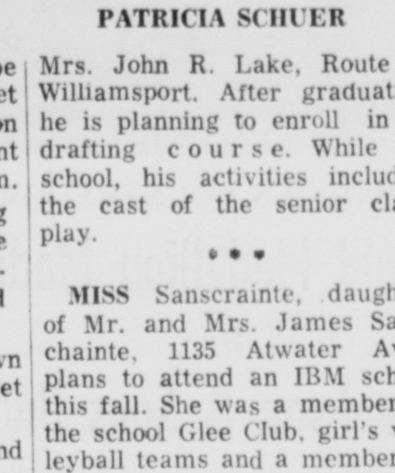

JOHN LAKE

JULIE SANS CRAINTE

PATRICIA MINER

PATRICIA SCHUER

Four local students will be graduated from Bishop Flaget High School, Chillicothe, on June 6. The commencement program will begin at 4 p. m.

The area students making the daily trip to Chillicothe are John Lake, Julie Sanscrainte, Patricia Miner and Patricia Schuer.

Here is a brief rundown on each of the Bishop Flaget graduates:

Lake is the son of Mr. and

Mrs. John R. Lake, Route 1, Williamsport. After graduation he is planning to enroll in a drafting course. While in school, his activities included the cast of the senior class play.

MISS Sanscrainte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sanscrainte, 1135 Atwater Ave., plans to attend an IBM school this fall. She was a member of the school Glee Club, girl's volleyball team and a member of the staff for school activities.

Miss Miner is the daughter of Mrs. Allen Trego, Route 3, Stoutsville. Her plans after graduation are uncertain. She was a member of the girls' volleyball team and was president of the Student Activities Assn.

Miss Schuer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Schuer, 218 Brinks Drive, plans to pursue a career in teaching. She was a member of the Glee Club, the Pep Club and was in the cast of the senior class play.

Yeewhaw Junction Courthouse Eyed

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Weary of clamoring among rival cities for a new district court of appeal, a committee of the Florida House settled on Yeewhaw Junction, an outpost of civilization in the wilds of Okechobee County.

If the legislature goes along with the committee, a state courthouse could be added to the two restaurants, filling station and truck stop on the Yeewhaw Junction skyline.

But this is unlikely.

The committee chairman, Rep. Lawton Chiles, said the bill was voted out Wednesday only to end bickering among West Palm Beach, Vero Beach and Fort Pierce for the court headquarters and allow the decision to be made on the floor.

Enrollment has been closed for grades one and two, but grades 3-6 still have a few vacancies. Enrollment may be completed by contacting the superintendent's office in the high school building.

Total costs of the program is $18 for city school residents and an additional $2 for children living outside the district.

Teachers assigned for the summer school program are Mrs. Marianne Langland, grades one and two; Louise Roth, grades three and four; Martha Reid, grades five and six.

Classes will meet Monday through Friday, 9-11:15 a. m., at Atwater School. A 15-minute rest period will be observed each day. The program will end July 23.

Plastic Surgery Need Is Great In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of South Vietnamese are so badly disfigured by gunshot and burn wounds they'll never be able to lead useful lives, says an American plastic surgeon who recently returned from the stricken land.

Only four Vietnamese plastic surgeons are available in that country of 14 million people, a severe shortage that represents a national tragedy, said Dr. Richard B. Stark, chief of plastic surgery at St. Luke's Hospital, New York.

Stark returned recently from Saigon after spending a month training and assisting the four Vietnamese plastic surgeons who face, he said, a staggering task of treating casualty cases that includes civilians and soldiers. Stark was an emissary of MEDICO, a nongovernmental medical group that provides aid in underprivileged areas of the world.

"Many of them (the victims) need 40 to 50 operations in order to be salvaged," said the doctor in a report to MEDICO. The report was made available to a reporter by CARE Inc., which is holding a world conference here. MEDICO is a service of CARE.

"Based on U.S. experiences in World War II and the Korean War," the report said, "it would take 15 years to perform the amount of reconstructive surgery needed to restore these people."

"MEDICO has made an important first step in tackling the problem," he said, adding that he and seven other American plastic surgeons lectured and operated under a program "calculated to upgrade the Vietnamese surgeons."

But plastic surgery is not the only medical deficiency in the area, he said.

"South Viet Nam," Stark said, "is a medical jungle. Statistics tell just part of the story. There are only 700 physicians in the entire country. However, 400 of these are serving up to 10 years in the armed forces. That leaves 300 physicians who must care for the civilian population of 14 million."

The doctor said a new phase of the plastic surgery and other surgery training program is under way with the cooperation of St. Luke's Hospital.

"It is designed," he said, "to pave the way for Vietnamese surgeons to train in U.S. hospitals under approved internship and residency programs."

Green Tail Light Studied In Hunt for Car Safety

CHICAGO (AP) — As the approaching Memorial Day weekend signals the start of vacation touring, some traffic safety researchers are studying the green light as a possible device to cut the highway death toll.

The proposal is a simple, but radical switch of color in auto and truck tail lights — from red to green. The red lights would not be taken away, but they would flare only when the car ahead was braking or about to turn.

The government and auto makers have shown interest in the idea. They are watching experiments in progress at Indiana University by the motorist's night vision research project.

"The green tail lights — we call them position lights — appear to give the motorist a much better awareness of the car ahead than red lights of the same intensity," says Dr. Merrill J. Allen, director of the project.

Allen, professor of optometry at the Bloomington, Ind., institution, is one of the safety researchers who believes that what the driver sees, or believes he sees, may be close in importance to the speed factor.

With 48,000 traffic deaths last year — more than 130 every day — it is difficult to realize that driving is actually safer than it used to be, in terms of the number of miles traveled between fatal accidents.

However, the fact remains that in 1925, when there were only about 20 million cars in the country, the annual motor vehicle death toll was about 21,000.

The 48,000 toll last year came with more than 85 million vehicles rolling up well over 800 billion miles. The annual total of vehicle miles has jumped by more than 80 billion since 1960.

TODAY In History

Today is Friday, May 28, the 148th day of 1965. There are 217 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1754, George Washington, then 22, received his baptism of fire in the battle of Great Meadows, near what is now Pittsburgh. It marked the beginning of the French and Indian War.

On this date: In 1866, the 4th Wisconsin Cavalry Regiment was mustered out of service after five years and one day. It was the longest term on record for a volunteer organization.

In 1940, the evacuation of Dunkerque began.

In 1945, U.S. Superforts made their first raid on Yokohama, Japan.

Five years ago — A military junta headed by Lt. Gen. Cemal Gursel formed a temporary government for Turkey.

One year ago — Thousands of Indians jammed New Delhi streets as the body of Prime Minister Nehru was borne to the banks of the Jumna River for cremation.

Less Demand For Russian

A thaw in the Cold War has caused educational problems in Rumania, which recently adopted a tension-easing attitude toward the West.

Reports from Radio Free Europe's headquarters in Munich, Germany, indicate that since Rumania stopped requiring students to study Russian, the demand for the subject has decreased so much that there is a large excess of Russian teachers.

At the beginning of the last school year, Russian took its place as just one of a number of foreign languages which can be chosen by the students.

A very small number of students chose the course and former Russian professors have since been shifted around and find themselves teaching such unrelated subjects as physical education and art.

Logan Elm GAA Elects Officers

The Girl's Athletic Assn. of Logan Elm High School recently elected officers for the 1965-66 school term.

Linda Fischer was named president; Diana Schaal, vice president; Linda Pontius, secretary; and Cindy Valentine, treasurer.

The girls' club held its annual picnic today at Gold Cliff Park.

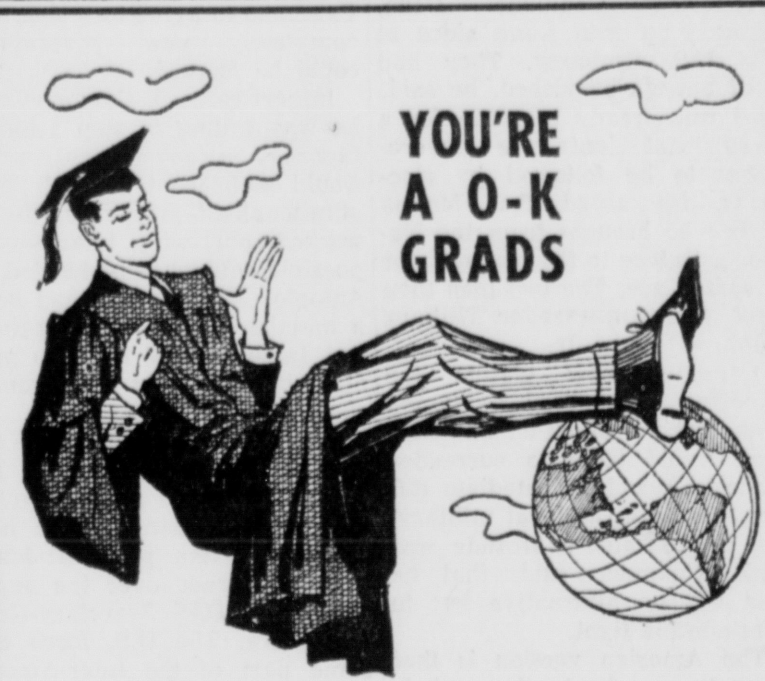

One of the club's highlighted activities during the school year was sponsoring next year's varsity cheerleaders at cheerleader camp.

U.S. Latin Role Is Reviewed

The curtain began to go up on the current scene early on the morning of April 24. Reid Cabral was not aware of the plot. He sent Gen. Marcos Rivera Cuesta, then army chief of staff, to a military base in the city to dismiss four officers. Rivera was taken prisoner.

That afternoon claims made on the rebel radio and the tenor of the oratory used, plus the identity of some of the civilians known Marxist and Castro sympathizers, frightened an important segment of the insurgents, including the original military group, who tried to reverse their coup.

It was too late. The "constitutional" movement was rolling.

Reid Cabral himself went on the air to report that the majority of the armed forces remained with him. He gave the rebels until 5 a.m. Sunday to surrender.

But the troops that Reid Cabral said were loyal to him did not move when the deadline was passed. This failure is regarded as the army's costliest error, the real turning point of the civil war.

Soon a ragtag civilian army led by regular officers took key defensive positions inside the city and at the Duarte Bridge. The bridge is the vital highway link between the city and the San Isidro air and training base center where army and air force units were concentrated.

The National Palace had fallen to the rebels, who installed Jose Rafael Molina Urena, a member of the Bosch Congress, as "provisional constitutional president."

Sources in a position to know claim that members of the Marxist-Castroite hierarchy in the Dominican Republic were actually in political control at the National Palace at this time. True or not, the fact remains that Molina Urena and some other military participants in the rebellion decided to give up the fight a few days later.

There was a lot of shooting in the city Saturday night and Sunday April 24 and 25. There were reports, too, of looting and of executions of the hated "cascos blancos," or white helmeted riot police, in a downtown park. Gen. Jacinto Martinez Arana, the present army chief of staff, said eyewitnesses told him as many as 70 were shot by firing squads.

The armed forces that had stuck with Reid Cabral now backed a new military junta. They did not swing into action until noon Monday. A flight of Vampire Jets and P51 Mustangs armed with rockets or machine guns swooped down that day on rebel defenses around the Duarte Bridge. The heaviest casualties of the civil war are said to have resulted from this air attack.

It was not until Tuesday that junta ground forces moved toward the city from the San Cristobal garrison. Public order had disintegrated. Santo Domingo was a jungle of violence.

In Washington, President Johnson prepared to send troops to the Dominican Republic for protection of American lives and property and to insure against a Communist takeover of the country.

The first force of American Marines hit Dominican soil Wednesday, April 28. More landed Thursday and on Friday the first two battalions of U.S. 82nd Airborne Division paratroopers arrived at San Isidro Air Base.

Paratroopers secured both ends of Duarte Bridge. Marines in the western suburbs were in control around the Hotel Embajador and in the vicinity of the U.S. Embassy.

Marines and paratroopers, moving from opposite directions, early on Monday, May 3, completed operation "Blue Chip," a corridor through the city to insure the flow of supplies and evacuation of Americans and foreign nations.

This operation stabilized the military situation roughly along the present lines. About a third of the 20 American combat deaths to date occurred during this period.

There also had been dramatic and significant changes along the political front.

A young rebel officer, Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, showed up with some aides at the U.S. Embassy. They had had enough bloodshed, he said, and were ready to settle for a provisional junta-type government to be followed by elections. He asked that Molina Urena be brought from the National Palace to the embassy for a conference. The two men then met with Ambassador William Tapley Bennett Jr.

Caamano now claims the American ambassador blamed them for the situation and said they would have to surrender since he could not mediate differences with the loyal military. The ambassador's attitude was such, Caamano said, that he was left no alternative but to continue the fight.

The American version is that Bennett received the rebels courteously and advised a settlement be made between Dominicans. It was at this time that Molina Urena went into political asylum.

The first special mediator arrived on the scene Friday, April 30 — John Barlow Martin, ambassador to the Dominican Republic during Bosch's regime.

On May 1 OAS Secretary-General Jose A. Mora arrived and on the following day came a three-man OAS truce team headed by Argentine Ambassador Ricardo C. Colombo.

A special White House task force led by presidential assistant McGeorge Bundy flew in May 16. In that same week, Jose Antonio Mayobre de Venecuella, a special representative of the United Nations, made his appearance.

By this time two rival "governments" had been created in Santo Domingo. One headed by Caamano claimed to be the constitutional heir of the Bosch government. The other was a five-man civilian-military junta headed by Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, one of the men who killed Trujillo.

The Imbert junta was considered to be a product of U.S. efforts to begin to normalize the situation. The U.S. had encouraged Imbert to take the job. Imbert rallied military forces and coincident with Bundy's arrival began a successful five-day battle to wipe out rebel resistance north of the U.S.-held corridor. There were reports, strongly denied by U.S. spokesmen, that American forces were helping the junta troops.

The United States decided not to interfere with the fighting in the north but worked with the OAS and the United Nations to get an effective cease-fire. Bundy established contacts with both the junta and rebel leaders

Too Many Candidates

MUNFORDVILLE, Ky. (AP) — David Stewart, the incumbent county clerk, figured out a way to keep candidates from wasting their campaign cards on each other.

Stewart, one of 57 who entered the May primary, had buttons made which read: "Don't Shake My Hand — I'm a Candidate Too."

as did the OAS and U.N. officials. Under pressure of reports that it was militarily favoring the junta, the United States a few days later announced President Johnson had reaffirmed "strict neutrality." American forces were operating under a policy of not firing unless fired upon.

Both the junta and the rebels accepted a 24-hour cease-fire arranged by the Red Cross and the United Nations from noon to noon May 21-22. The junta claimed it had wiped out all rebel resistance in the northern suburbs.

Bundy was here 10 days, negotiating under a cover of secrecy. But it became known he tried to get both Imbert and Caamano to agree to resign so a completely new government could be formed.

Imbert refused. Caamano said he was willing to step aside in favor of a government which would embrace the rebel "constitutional" principles. Bundy worked out with Caamano a possible cabinet to be headed by Antonio Guzman, who had been a member of the Bosch regime. But Imbert would have no part of this. He said the rebels should surrender.

Bundy left Wednesday to report to President Johnson. He felt he had made some progress toward a solution, but he had not broken the political deadlock. He turned over the negotiations to OAS Secretary-General Mora. The U.S. force became part of the Inter-American Force under the OAS.

After Bundy's arrival in Washington, administration sources made plain they still wanted both Imbert and Caamano to step down and that the OAS should carry the ball in mediation efforts. The IAF, they said, will be needed in the Dominican Republic for a considerable time.

There was some speculation that the IAF would be cut to a total of 4,000 U.S. troops, plus 2,000 men from Latin-American countries.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said that the Communist threat in the Dominican Republic had been "very substantially reduced."

Militarily the situation is a stalemate between the junta and rebel forces. The rebels hold the downtown commercial section of Santo Domingo in a tight grip. They are separated from junta troops by the American corridor, the international zone and the Ozama River. The rebellion has not spread to the countryside.

By the end of the rebellion's fifth week, no one can tell what the final solution will be. Because of the buffer zone there is general hope here and in Washington that fighting will not break out again.

Imbert, whose influence has spread to some degree to the countryside, is waging a campaign by radio and by rallies to win support and get U.S. recognition.

The rebels, through frequent news conferences and appeals for support abroad, denounce U.S. intervention and call for a "settlement by Dominicans of the Dominican problem." Rebel leaders say they deserved U.S. recognition.

Yale's Sophs Publish Critique on Professors

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — If a Yale professor wants to know what his students really think of him as a teacher he can find out by buying a student publication called the "Yale Course Critique."

This 200-page volume is an inside-dope report from this year's sophomores to next year's freshmen and sophomores. But it also is read by faculty members.

A senior professor with a wide reputation as a scholar might find out from the critique that his undergraduate students think he is "stale."

A young woman instructor might discover that her all-male classes think she "unbelievably sweet."

One example from the 1965 edition says a course "is invariably described as dull — 'boring with a capital B,' as one student put it homework counts little, is graded liberally."

Occasionally the editors are more critical of students than faculty.

For instance: "Mr. Cook — Asst. Prof. Robert M. Cook — attempt through his Sociology 20 course to fight the obsessive, grade-grubbing, anti-educational mentality of many Yale students. Unfortunately, many enrollees do no more than a fraction of the reading."

The ability to make a course interesting and challenging, a personal interest in students, and a sense of humor seem to be the most appreciated qualities in Yale teachers.

Humor, or the lack of it, almost invariably draws comment. But a professor who gets carried away by his own anecdotes is likely to have his lectures called "irrelevant" or even "meaningless."

The student editors don't hesitate to turn up their noses at teachers who they think talk down to them, can be drawn off the subject, or are fooled by the parroting of pet phrases.

Yale's course critique is a money-making project of the Yale Daily News, the student newspaper. The 1965 edition, the most ambitious yet, sells for $1.95 a copy.

According to a Daily News editor, the critique has always been "pretty much a sophomore project" primarily designed to inform students who are new on campus.

A similar publication, "Confidential Guide to Courses," is published by the Harvard Crimson.

Reactions to these publications seem to fall into two categories.

One side says students aren't qualified to criticize the learned, experienced men on the faculty. The other side maintains that no one knows better than students whether they're learning anything.

Although the Yale critique is entirely a student operation, it has a nonofficial "adviser," Andrew Patterson Jr., associate professor of chemistry.

Patterson has been critical, but not hostile. He has charged that previous critiques have perhaps had plenty of "sharp and incisive writing," but were often ill-informed and one-sided. This year the student editors adopted some of his suggestions and circulated detailed questionnaires among students in each class so that a consensus, rather than one person's opinion, could be obtained.

Maumee Youth Camp Planned

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Plans are complete for construction of the proposed Maumee Youth Camp in Henry County at a cost of $700,000, the Ohio Youth Commission announced today.

William (Bill) Willis, commission director of correctional services, said the camp will be ready to open next November.

He said about 120 boys in the same age group with common problems will receive instruction in basic skills that will enable them to become responsible wage earners.

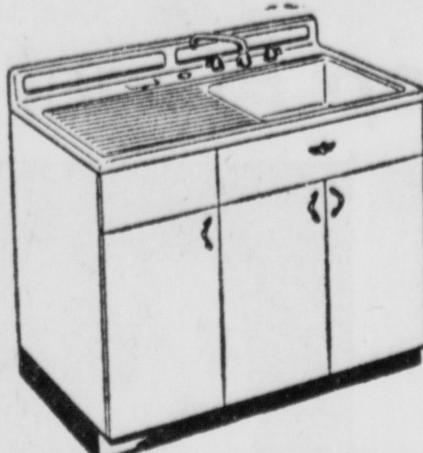

Second Meeting

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—Police Officer Dave Dovala investigated a minor collision at a Casper intersection involving cars driven by Donald Couture, 26, and Beverly Wolture, 25, both of Casper.

The next day, Dovala investigated another minor accident. Sure enough, the cars involved were driven by Couture and Miss Wolture.

U.S. Latin Role Is Reviewed

The curtain began to go up on the current scene early on the morning of April 24. Reid Cabral was not aware of the plot. He sent Gen. Marcos Rivera Cuesta, then army chief of staff, to a military base in the city to dismiss four officers. Rivera was taken prisoner.

That afternoon claims made on the rebel radio and the tenor of the oratory used, plus the identity of some of the civilians known Marxist and Castro sympathizers, frightened an important segment of the insurgents, including the original military group, who tried to reverse their coup.

It was too late. The "constitutional" movement was rolling.

Reid Cabral himself went on the air to report that the majority of the armed forces remained with him. He gave the rebels until 5 a.m. Sunday to surrender.

But the troops that Reid Cabral said were loyal to him did not move when the deadline was passed. This failure is regarded as the army's costliest error, the real turning point of the civil war.

Soon a ragtag civilian army led by regular officers took key defensive positions inside the city and at the Duarte Bridge. The bridge is the vital highway link between the city and the San Isidro air and training base center where army and air force units were concentrated.

The National Palace had fallen to the rebels, who installed Jose Rafael Molina Urena, a member of the Bosch Congress, as "provisional constitutional president."

Sources in a position to know claim that members of the Marxist-Castro hierarchy in the Dominican Republic were actually in political control at the National Palace at this time. True or not, the fact remains that Molina Urena and some other military participants in the rebellion decided to give up the fight a few days later.

There was a lot of shooting in the city Saturday night and Sunday April 24 and 25. There were reports, too, of looting and of executions of the hated "cascos blancos," or white helmeted riot police, in a downtown park. Gen. Jacinto Martinez Arana, the present army chief of staff, said eyewitnesses told him as many as 70 were shot by firing squads.

The armed forces that had stuck with Reid Cabral now backed a new military junta. They did not swing into action until noon Monday. A flight of Vampire Jets and P51 Mustangs armed with rockets or machine guns swooped down that day on rebel defenses around the Duarte Bridge. The heaviest casualties of the civil war are said to have resulted from this air attack.

It was not until Tuesday that junta ground forces moved toward the city from the San Cristobal garrison. Public order had disintegrated. Santo Domingo was a jungle of violence.

In Washington, President Johnson prepared to send troops to the Dominican Republic for protection of American lives and property and to insure against a Communist takeover of the country.

The first force of American Marines hit Dominican soil Wednesday, April 28. More landed Thursday and on Friday the first two battalions of U.S. 82nd Airborne Division paratroopers arrived at San Isidro Air Base.

Paratroopers secured both ends of Duarte Bridge. Marines in the western suburbs were in control around the Hotel Embajador and in the vicinity of the U.S. Embassy.

Marines and paratroopers, moving from opposite directions, early on Monday, May 3, completed operation "Blue Chip," a corridor through the city to insure the flow of supplies and evacuation of Americans and foreign nations.

This operation stabilized the military situation roughly along the present lines. About a third of the 20 American combat deaths to date occurred during this period.

There also had been dramatic and significant changes along the political front.

A young rebel officer, Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, showed up with some aides at the U.S. Embassy. They had had enough bloodshed, he said, and were ready to settle for a provisional junta-type government to be followed by elections. He asked that Molina Urena be brought from the National Palace to the embassy for a conference. The two men then met with Ambassador William Tapley Bennett Jr.

Caamano now claims the American ambassador blamed them for the situation and said they would have to surrender since he could not mediate differences with the loyal military. The ambassador's attitude was such, Caamano said, that he was left no alternative but to continue the fight.

The American version is that Bennett received the rebels courteously and advised a settlement be made between Dominicans. It was at this time that Molina Urena went into political asylum.

The first special mediator arrived on the scene Friday, April 30 — John Barlow Martin, ambassador to the Dominican Republic during Bosch's regime.

On May 1 OAS Secretary-General Jose A. Mora arrived and on the following day came a three-man OAS truce team headed by Argentine Ambassador Ricardo C. Colombo.

A special White House task force led by presidential assistant McGeorge Bundy flew in May 16. In that same week, Jose Antonio Mayobre of Venezuela, a special representative of the United Nations, made his appearance.

By this time two rival "governments" had been created in Santo Domingo. One headed by Caamano claimed to be the constitutional heir of the Bosch government. The other was a five-man civilian-military junta headed by Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, one of the men who killed Trujillo.

The Imbert junta was considered to be a product of U.S. efforts to begin to normalize the situation. The U.S. had encouraged Imbert to take the job. Imbert rallied military forces and coincident with Bundy's arrival began a successful five-day battle to wipe out rebel resistance north of the U.S.-held corridor. There were reports, strongly denied by U.S. spokesmen, that American forces were helping the junta troops.

The United States decided not to interfere with the fighting in the north but worked with the OAS and the United Nations to get an effective cease-fire. Bundy established contacts with both the junta and rebel leaders

Too Many Candidates

MUNFORDVILLE, Ky. (AP) — David Stewart, the incumbent county clerk, figured out a way to keep candidates from wasting their campaign cards on each other.

Stewart, one of 57 who entered the May primary, had buttons made which read: "Don't Shake My Hand — I'm a Candidate Too."

as did the OAS and U.N. officials. Under pressure of reports that it was militarily favoring the junta, the United States a few days later announced President Johnson had reaffirmed "strict neutrality." American forces were operating under a policy of not firing unless fired upon.

Both the junta and the rebels accepted a 24-hour cease-fire arranged by the Red Cross and the United Nations from noon to noon May 21-22. The junta claimed it had wiped out all rebel resistance in the northern suburbs.

Bundy was here 10 days, negotiating under a cover of secrecy. But it became known he tried to get both Imbert and Caamano to agree to resign so a completely new government could be formed.

Imbert refused. Caamano said he was willing to step aside in favor of a government which would embrace the rebel "constitutional" principles. Bundy worked out with Caamano a possible cabinet to be headed by Antonio Guzman, who had been a member of the Bosch regime. But Imbert would have no part of this. He said the rebels should surrender.

Bundy left Wednesday to report to President Johnson. He felt he had made some progress toward a solution, but he had not broken the political deadlock. He turned over the negotiations to OAS Secretary-General Mora. The U.S. force became part of the Inter-American Force under the OAS.

After Bundy's arrival in Washington, administration sources made plain they still wanted both Imbert and Caamano to step down and that the OAS should carry the ball in mediation efforts. The IAF, they said, will be needed in the Dominican Republic for a considerable time.

There was some speculation that the IAF would be cut to a total of 4,000 U.S. troops, plus 2,000 men from Latin-American countries.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said that the Communist threat in the Dominican Republic had been "very substantially reduced."

Militarily the situation is a stalemate between the junta and rebel forces. The rebels hold the downtown commercial section of Santo Domingo in a tight grip. They are separated from junta troops by the American corridor, the international zone and the Ozama River. The rebellion has not spread to the countryside.

By the end of the rebellion's fifth week, no one can tell what the final solution will be. Because of the buffer zone there is general hope here and in Washington that fighting will not break out again.

Imbert, whose influence has spread to some degree to the countryside, is waging a campaign by radio and by rallies to win support and get U.S. recognition.

The rebels, through frequent news conferences and appeals for support abroad, denounce U.S. intervention and call for a "settlement by Dominicans of the Dominican problem." Rebel leaders say they deserved U.S. recognition.

Chinese Carry Staggering Load

Editor's Note — U.S. reporters are barred from Red China, but the chief of Southam News Services in Canada now is touring that vast country and is making his dispatches available to The Associated Press.

By CHARLES LYNCH
SIAN, China (AP)—In Egypt, I was staggered by the loads carried by camels. The camels were pretty staggered, too.

Here in Sian, often called the birthplace of China, I am staggered by the loads hauled by women.

My feelings about women are not the same as my feelings about camels, so it is with some pain that I witness the good ladies of Sian straining at the shafts of their cargo rickshaws, moving the goods of the city through the streets.

The men, of course, haul even bigger loads — huge blocks of concrete, and as many as six logs, each a foot thick and 10-foot long; cargoes of coal, cargoes of mud, cargoes of everything. In the museum here, they have a chart to show that in the bad old days, five men equaled one horse in the economy of China. To judge by the sights in the streets of Sian, they have now cut that down to two men equaling one horse, in terms of pulling power.

The bicycle rickshaws used as taxis here are larger than the ones in Peking. The Peking models carry only one passenger—but these, like the ones in India, have broader seats and one can seat two adults and two children. At that, it's doubtless better than hauling cement on foot.

"Write what you see," they say, and what one sees in Sian includes 12 men working on a single pothole in the street; people living in caves while a huge hotel built for the departed Russians stands empty; the ancient walls of the city falling down—a city that fails to measure up to the propaganda image claimed for it.

The current issue of "China Reconstructs," a glossy Peking periodical, has a feature article on Sian that fails to prepare the traveler for the realities of the city, simply by including only the good and avoiding the city's more obvious characteristics.

When they say the former slums have been cleaned out, they state something that simply is not true. When they speak of thatched hovels in the past tense, they mislead—many streets are lined with them.

When they talk of people who used to eke out miserable livelihoods pulling rickshaws and cart or working as coolies, they fail to mention that thousands continue to do so. When they say that all streets have been paved, the mud on one's feet testifies that it is not so.

The magazine correctly praises the beauty of the ancient museum of Sian, world-famed for its collection of Buddhist tablets, and for the 5th century carvings of the Wei horses—four of which are here, and two of which are in Philadelphia, Pa.

The "theft" of these two horses by the agents of U.S. imperialism is made much of—even more eloquent is the fact that the four remaining horses were cut up for shipment to the United States and are exhibited with the cracks opened as wide as possible.

The Consequences of Sin

DAVID'S GREAT SIN AND ITS CONSEQUENCES

Scripture — II Samuel 11-13.

By R. H. RAMSEY

THE STORY of David's darkest sin is told in four short verses, but its consequences occupy whole chapters in the subsequent narrative. David and Bathsheba had committed adultery, resulting in her conception. She informed David of her condition and left him to handle the situation.

Wishing to protect Bathsheba, Uriah, her husband and one of David's most trusted warriors, and himself, David summoned Uriah from the battlefield with the idea of sending him home to spend the night with his wife. The plan failed, for Uriah respected the custom forbidding intercourse to warriors consecrated for battle and slept at the palace with the king's servants.

David tried again, this time getting Uriah drunk in order to overcome his resistance. But Uriah again slept at the palace. He secretly sent a letter to his field commander asking that Uriah be placed in the front lines of the hottest battle selfishness, and ignores its sensuality and impurity. It did its work wisely and well, for David could clearly see how grievously the rich man had sinned in taking the poor man's lamb to feed his guest.

David's anger was kindled and he reasoned that the rich man deserved to die for his misdeed, but as restitution should, instead, "restore the lamb fourfold, because he did this thing, and because he had no pity."

In effect, David had asked Nathan to identify the man of whom he was talking and Nathan, knowing his story had evoked the proper response, said, "Thou art the man." As the prophet of God, it was Nathan's responsibility to bring King David to judgment for his dual sin of violating another man's wife and then being responsible for that man's death. It was also Nathan's responsibility to bring David to repentance for his sinfulness.

Nathan accomplished both in the passage beginning, "Thus saith the Lord," God's voice is clearly heard in this passage,

GOLDEN TEXT

"Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me; and showing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments.—Exodus 20: 5, 6.

in order that he might be killed. The plan worked. Uriah was killed, and when Bathsheba's period of mourning was over, David married her to protect her and their unborn child.

The story is lurid, but it is part of Biblical history and, at the end, the scriptures add the significant commentary, "But the thing David had done displeased the Lord."

Now God prepares to deal with His anointed servant through His prophet, Nathan, and his parable of two men—the one rich, the other poor.

The rich man had great flocks and herds; the poor man had nothing but one little ewe lamb which he was able to buy and keep until it was grown. Because the little ewe lamb was brought up within the poor man's family, it brought much joy and comfort to them. One day a traveler came to visit the rich man. He was unwilling to take any of his own flock or herd to prepare a feast for the guest, so he took the poor man's lamb instead.

Nathan's parable is a masterpiece of pathos and power. It fastened upon the essential guilt of David's sin, its meanness and reminding David of His goodness to him. He had bestowed upon David great gifts: kingship, deliverance, possessions and, if these were not enough for David, He would have given him all the extras He deemed necessary for his well-being.

David repents, revealing his spiritual stature in his ability to see that the true nature of his sin was rebellion against God. He had behaved as a pagan king; he had dishonored his role as God's anointed king by being disobedient to His law; he had disrupted the lives of other men, thus defeating God's purpose for them. Nathan heard David's repentance and assured him of God's full forgiveness, but warned there would be judgment nevertheless.

The bitter consequences of David's sin began making themselves known almost immediately. First, the son born to Bathsheba sickened and died; then David's son, Amnon, violated his half-sister, Tamar. For this deed, Amnon was slain by Tamar's brother, Absalom, who became an exile. Finally Absalom joined Adonijah, another of David's sons, in a revolt against David in which both lost their lives.

Less Squirt, Please
ALBUQUERQUE (AP)
City hall's water fountain will be just a little squirt — about 18 inches of spouting water.

Maintenance chief George Hendrix had a wet time making this decision. Wind kept blowing higher spouts off path, and the water landed on concrete walks instead of in the fountain. Several times it got out of control and shot about 50 feet into the air.

Finally they settled for a little squirt.

The Consequences of Sin

DAVID'S GREAT SIN AND ITS CONSEQUENCES

Scripture — II Samuel 11-13.

By R. H. RAMSEY

THE STORY of David's darkness is told in four short verses, but its consequences occupy whole chapters in the subsequent narrative. David and Bathsheba had committed adultery, resulting in her conception. She informed David of her condition and left him to handle the situation.

Wishing to protect Bathsheba, Uriah, her husband and one of David's most trusted warriors, and himself, David summoned Uriah from the battlefield with the idea of sending him home to spend the night with his wife. The plan failed, for Uriah respected the custom forbidding intercourse to warriors consecrated for battle and slept at the palace with the king's servants.

David tried again, this time getting Uriah drunk in order to overcome his resistance. But Uriah again slept at the palace. This left David but one alternative. He secretly sent a letter to his field commander asking that Uriah be placed in the front lines of the hottest battle selfishness, and ignores its sensuality and impurity. It did its work wisely and well, for David could clearly see how grievously the rich man had sinned in taking the poor man's lamb to feed his guest.

David's anger was kindled and he reasoned that the rich man deserved to die for his misdeed, but as restitution should, instead, "restore the lamb fourfold, because he did this thing, and because he had no pity."

In effect, David had asked Nathan to identify the man of whom he was talking and Nathan, knowing his story had evoked the proper response, said, "Thou art the man." As the prophet of God, it was Nathan's responsibility to bring King David to judgment for his dual sin of violating another man's wife and then being responsible for that man's death. It was also Nathan's responsibility to bring David to repentance for his sinfulness.

Nathan accomplished both in the passage beginning, "Thus saith the Lord," God's voice is clearly heard in this passage,

GOLDEN TEXT

"Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me; and showing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments.—Exodus 20: 5, 6.

in order that he might be killed. The plan worked. Uriah was killed, and when Bathsheba's period of mourning was over, David married her to protect her and their unborn child.

The story is lurid, but it is part of Biblical history and, at the end, the scriptures add the significant commentary, "But the thing David had done displeased the Lord."

Now God prepares to deal with His anointed servant through His prophet, Nathan, and his parable of two men—the one rich, the other poor.

The rich man had great flocks and herds; the poor man had nothing but one little ewe lamb which he was able to buy and keep until it was grown. Because the little ewe lamb was brought up within the poor man's family, it brought much joy and comfort to them. One day a traveler came to visit the rich man. He was unwilling to take any of his own flock or herd to prepare a feast for the guest, so he took the poor man's lamb instead.

Nathan's parable is a masterpiece of pathos and power. It fastened upon the essential guilt of David's sin, its meanness and reminding David of His goodness to him. He had bestowed upon David great gifts: kingship, deliverance, possessions, and, if these were not enough for David, He would have given him all the extras He deemed necessary for his well-being.

David repents, revealing his spiritual stature in his ability to see that the true nature of his sin was rebellion against God. He had behaved as a pagan king; he had dishonored his role as God's anointed king by being disobedient to His law; he had disrupted the lives of other men, thus defeating God's purpose for them. Nathan heard David's repentance and assured him of God's full forgiveness, but warned there would be judgment nevertheless.

The bitter consequences of David's sin began making themselves known almost immediately. First, the son born to Bathsheba sickened and died; then David's son, Amnon, violated his half-sister, Tamar. For this deed, Amnon was slain by Tamar's brother, Absalom, who became an exile. Finally Absalom joined Adonijah, another of David's sons, in a revolt against David in which both lost their lives.

Horse Meat Sale In Ohio Pondered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, and Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., have called for a Senate investigation of alleged illegal sales of horse meat labeled beef in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

The two are cosponsoring a resolution to authorize the Senate Agriculture Committee to conduct the probe.

Williams said the sales reportedly covered a period of more than a year in a plant where seven Agriculture Department meat inspectors were stationed.

They are Sandra Kay Bayes, Joyce Ann Davis, Ruth Edna Lewis, Linda G. Minor, Elaine Sue Perkins, John David Rogers, Jo Anne Seibel, Gary Lewis Sharpe, Diane Kay Thomas, Lucinda Vincent.

The students maintained a 3.5 or better scholastic average for their four years in high school. The recognition was accorded in place of the conventional valedictorian and salutatorian awards.

GORDON MASSIE, Westfall principal, presented each of the honor students with a trophy. Each wore a gold honor cord during the ceremony.

Commencement speaker was Fred A. Palmer, widely known sales consultant from Worthington.

Less Squirt, Please

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — City hall's water fountain will be just a little squirt — about 18 inches of spouting water.

Maintenance chief George Hendrix had a wet time making this decision. Wind kept blowing higher spouts off path, and the water landed on concrete walks instead of in the fountain. Several times it got out of control and shot about 50 feet into the air.

Finally they settled for a little squirt.

Dean Chance Still Trying To Find Range

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Did somebody ask what was wrong with Dean Chance?

It's obvious. Just a serious case of outs. He can't seem to get many.

Chance, the Cy Young Award winner last season, continued his 1965 slide Thursday, absorbing his worst pummeling in two seasons as Washington battered Los Angeles 9-6.

It was the fourth straight loss.

The only thing swift about Chance against the Senators was the time it took Washington to knock him out. The Senators assaulted him for seven runs and eight hits in 2 2-3 innings.

You have to go back to May 12, 1963, for a similar assault on Chance. That day he gave up five runs in 1 1-3 innings against the White Sox.

Chance, who said he was worried after dropping his third straight last week, must be terrified today following his nightmarish encounter with the Senators.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston dropped Minnesota out of first place, blanking the Twins 2-0 and Detroit tagged New York 4-1.

In the National League, New York whacked Chicago 8-5, San Francisco battered Cincinnati 9-2, Houston downed St. Louis 6-1 and Los Angeles nipped Milwaukee 3-2.

Pittsburgh's game at Philadelphia was postponed by rain in the National League and Kansas City's visit to Baltimore was rained out in the AL.

Chance has given 32 earned runs in his 11 appearances and has barely resembled the 20-9 pitcher he was a year ago. Dean started with three straight victories but has failed to win in his last five starts.

A two-run triple by relief pitcher Marshall Bridges knocked Chance out in the third as the Senators exploded for six runs. Joe Cunningham and Frank Howard homered for Washington with Howard's shot landing off the mezzanine 460 feet from home plate in D.C. Stadium.

Whitey Ford, who had shut out the Senators for New York in his last start, quit after just one inning against the Tigers, saying simply that "he didn't have it."

If Ford didn't have it, Detroit's Joe Sparma sure did. The young right-hander drove in two runs with a double and limited the Yankees to five hits with Roger Maris' two-out homer in the ninth spoiling the shutout bid.

The Twins, who had eight homers and two victories in their first two games against the Red Sox in Fenway Park, ran into Dave Morehead. The youngster limited the heavy-hitting Twins to three hits until the ninth inning but got into a jam by loading the bases on three walks after striking out Harmon Killebrew to open the inning.

Dick Radatz, ineffective in relief so far this season, lumbered out of the Boston bullpen and ended the threat by fanning pinch-hitters Don Mincher and Sandy Valdespino.

Joe O'Brien, 47-year-old Canadian driver, has driven harness horses to one-mile races of two minutes or faster on 69 occasions.

MEMORIAL TROPHY — The Virginia Groom Memorial Trophy will be presented for the first time Sunday night at the Kiwanis Charity Horse Show. It will be an annual award.

Virginia Groom Memorial Trophy To Be Presented

The Virginia Groom Memorial Challenge Trophy is the name being given to the trophy honoring the late Mrs. Ned Groom who served as show secretary for the Kiwanis Charity Horse Show.

The trophy will be presented to the winner in the five-gaited stake class during the show being held Saturday and Sunday at the Fairgrounds.

Each year's five-gaited stake class winner will have his name engraved on the original trophy. He will also receive a smaller replica of the trophy.

Possession of the original trophy will remain with the local show unless or until one exhibitor wins the Stake Championship three times. In this case the exhibitor will be given permanent possession.

Mrs. Ned Groom, in whose memory the trophy has been presented by Mrs. C. G. Schulze, had a life long interest in horses. She was a well known exhibitor in this area.

SHE faithfully attended most of shows in the tri-state area. She never missed an opportunity to encourage others in the breeding and showing of American Saddle Bred Horses.

Ten years ago Mrs. Grooms was one of a group of local people who organized the first 4-H Colt and Equitation club in the state. Since then many local 4-H members, through her interest have been encouraged to raise and show more and better horses.

Her advice and encouragement have helped the 4-H members to do well in this highly competitive project area even though Ohio now has more 4-H horses than any other project.

Mrs. Groom was also active in the organization of the Pickaway Saddle and Bridle Club in which she served as an officer or active member until her death in 1964.

When the Saddle and Bridle Club, along with Kiwanis, decided to organize and sponsor a Horse Show, Mrs. Groom because of her knowledge and experience with horses, the people who own and show them and of horse shows, was the logical person to assume the highly demanding job of show secretary. She held this position until her death a short time before the 1964 Show.

The trophy will be presented on Sunday night by Linda Warner, a former 4-H member who also showed horses belonging to Mrs. Groom.

Groza Signs Again For More Marks

CLEVELAND (AP) — Lou (The Toe) Groza, veteran of 18 seasons with the Cleveland Browns, has signed a 1965 contract, and that means new records for the National Football League books.

Every time Groza scores a point—and he was only five points behind the NFL leader last season with a total of 115 points — the league records change. He is the all-time leading scorer with 1,102 points, and no one else is near him. The 1,102 does not include the 259 points The Toe scored from 1946 to 1949, when the Browns were in the old All-American Conference.

He needs to play in only three games to set a record for the most NFL games played — 177.

Ohio Holiday Fishing Chance 'Looks Good'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Division of Wildlife said today prospects for fishermen over the Memorial Day weekend "look good," with most waters in fair to good condition. Recent rains, however, have muddled some streams and lakes.

The outlook by areas:

CENTRAL OHIO — Although there are no particular "hot spots" in this section most lakes and streams are producing well. A few of the good lakes are Buckeye, Kiser, Knox, Indian and Delaware. Bass, bluegills and catfish are doing well. Stream fishing varies, some are cloudy, others are clear. Some trout are hitting in the Mad River.

NORTHWEST — Most stream are high and muddy from recent rainstorms but a few white bass and bullheads are being taken in the Sandusky, Portage and Maumee rivers. Water is clearing around Catawba, fishing is fair for perch. Findlay and Fostoria reservoirs are clear and normal and a few channel catfish and largemouth bass and walleyes are being caught.

NORTHEAST — The report from this section indicates virtually all waters are in good fishing condition. Bass, bluegills, catfish and crappies are biting in most lakes. Streams are mostly in good, clear condition.

SOUTHEAST — Clear and normal is the report from most areas in this section. Some of the "good producers" are Piedmont, Seneca, Hocking, Dillon, Vesuvius, Veto, and Alma lakes. Good fishing should be found in Hocking River, Walhonding, Muskingum and other tributary streams. A 56½-pound flathead catfish was taken this week from Piedmont.

SOUTHWEST — The best spots here are Grant, Stonelick, Cowan and Rocky Fork lakes. Bass, bluegills, catfish and some muskies are showing up. Best stream fishing will be in the following counties: Preble, Warren, Clermont and Adams.

Ebenhack, Slated For TV Appearance

Emmett Ebenhack, well known Pickaway County harness horse trainer and driver, an his son Tommy, will appear on the Earl Flora outdoor show tomorrow at 5:30 p. m.

The show, broadcast live from a Columbus television station, is to acquaint the public with the sport of harness racing.

Willie Shoemaker has led the riders at Hollywood Park 15 times in the last 16 years.

Spring Sports Carnival Is Awaited

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Titles are on the line in four sports this weekend as Ohio's high school athletes shoot for honors in baseball, golf, tennis and track.

It's the annual two-day, four-sport spring carnival at Ohio State University's sprawling athletic plant.

The scholastic stars started firing early today in baseball and golf. Tennis play opens this afternoon and the 58th annual track and field spectacular is set for an all-day run Saturday.

New champions are assured in baseball and tennis but defending titlists return in golf and track with good shots at repeating.

Cincinnati Western Hills, 27-0 in regular season play and a two-time state champion, rates the favorite's role in Class AA baseball.

Western opposes Steubenville

Catholic (18-4) and Rossford goes against Shaker Heights (20-5) in 1:30 p.m. contests.

In morning action involving smaller schools, Lucasville Valley (15-4) of Scioto County meets Powhatan (10-1) of Belmont County and Versailles (6-4) of Darke County faces Deshler (13-2) of Henry County. The finals in each class are set for 11 a.m. Saturday.

Randy Wertz of Toledo De-Vilbiss, who lost in the final round a year ago, and Worthington's Paul Mitchell, unbeaten in 17 starts, are cofavorites to cop the tennis crown.

Singles play this year has an international flavor with Nick Lidskog of Mansfield Madison, an exchange student from Sweden, vying for honor.

Ron Hollinger and Terry Brown of Mansfield Senior look like the duo to whip in doubles. Barborton Northon, which took team honors last year and Ross Barchy Jr. of Upper Arlington, who copped medalist laurels, return in the 36-hole golf match at OSU's Scarlet and Gray layouts.

Fourteen events in each division are slated Saturday in the track and field show. Dayton Dunbar and Fairport Harbor, which won the AA and A titles, respectively, try to retain their championships.

Stiff challenges are expected from Cleveland Glenville, Cleveland East Tech, Dayton Roosevelt and Upper Arlington in AA, and Warren Market, Frankfort and Marion Pleasant in the small-school division.

Some of the standouts to watch include Roosevelt's Mike Kennedy, Jim Calloway and Willie Peterson; Steve Korinchaf of Cleveland Rhoads, who set an all-time Ohio mark in the mile run with a 4:15.4 in last week's regional.

Class A cinder stars include Fairport's Mike Thomas in the hurdles; Marion's Larry Midlam in the same events and Warren Market's Roy Frazier, defending Class A sprint king who won the 100, 220 and 440 in regional tests.

OU, OSU To Meet in Baseball Test

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—It may be a case of the irresistible force meeting the immovable object when Ohio State and Ohio University meet in the District 4 NCAA Baseball Tournament here today.

The two powerhouses advanced to the second round of play with victories over out-of-state opponents Thursday.

The Buckeyes, Big Ten champions, easily dropped Ball State of Indiana, 4-0, behind the three-hit pitching of John Durant.

The Mid-American Conference champion Bobcats squeezed by Detroit, 7-6.

The two Ohio teams meet at 1 p.m. today following a morning contest in the losers bracket between Detroit and Ball State. The loser of the first game will drop out of the double-elimination tournament.

Later in the afternoon, the loser of the Ohio State-Ohio U. game will meet the winner of the Detroit-Ball State contest.

The Buckeyes now are 24-11 for the season.

Thursday's win was the 22nd straight for the Bobcats, giving them a season mark of 28-1.

Pitcher Tom Murphy picked up his tenth victory of the season against no setbacks, but did so with the help of relief pitching in the ninth, when Detroit stranded two men on the bags.

Practice Scheduled

Kochheiser Hardware Babe Ruth baseball team will practice 6 p. m. today and will play a practice game at 9 a. m. tomorrow it was announced by team manager, Sam Weller.

Weller said players should report at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Club Shots

Several golfers are improving their game at the Pickaway Country Club according to Pro Tom Cassidy.

Cassidy reports that Jim Stallings shot his best ever 9-hole score of 40 recently. Don Dodge recorded a top score of 42.

Bob McKelvey carded a 38-39-77 and his wife, Jan, a 44-47-91 for personal marks.

Young Greg Heiskell, only 10-years-old, carded a birdie four on the number five hole at the PCC. It was his first birdie.

Qualifiers for the men's Southeastern Ohio Golf Assn. thus far are Rudy Chelickowski 84, George Hamrick 81, Steve Brudzinski 76, Bill Heiskell 75.

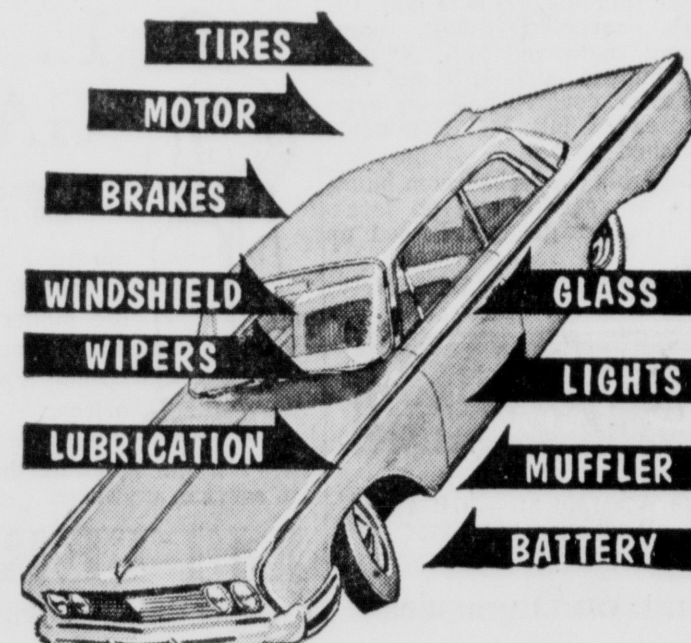

Cassidy reports Ruth Athey was at the club for the first time yesterday.

Events coming up or in progress include the National Golf Day Tournament, for which golfers may qualify until May 31, a pro's choice with a best ball twosome Sunday and the Junior SEOGA tournament scheduled June 12.

Only four of the original 22 players claimed by the New York Mets in the National League expansion draft of 1961 are still with the team. They are Chris Cannizzaro, Joe Christopher, Jim Hickman and Al Jackson.

Dean Chance Still Trying To Find Range

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Did somebody ask what was wrong with Dean Chance?

It's obvious. Just a serious case of outh. He can't seem to get many.

Chance, the Cy Young Award winner last season, continued his 1965 slide Thursday, absorbing his worst pummeling in two seasons as Washington battered Los Angeles 9-6.

It was the fourth straight loss. The only thing swift about Chance against the Senators was the time it took Washington to knock him out. The Senators assaulted him for seven runs and eight hits in 2 2-3 innings.

You have to go back to May 12, 1963, for a similar assault on Chance. That day he gave up five runs in 1 1-3 innings against the White Sox.

Chance, who said he was worried after dropping his third straight last week, must be terrified today following his nightmarish encounter with the Senators.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston dropped Minnesota out of first place, blanking the Twins 2-0 and Detroit tagged New York 4-1.

In the National League, New York whacked Chicago 8-5, San Francisco battered Cincinnati 9-2, Houston downed St. Louis 6-1 and Los Angeles nipped Milwaukee 3-2.

Pittsburgh's game at Philadelphia was postponed by rain in the National League and Kansas City's visit to Baltimore was rained out in the AL.

Chance has given 32 earned runs in his 11 appearances and has barely resembled the 20-9 pitcher he was a year ago. Dean started with three straight victories but has failed to win in his last five starts.

A two-run triple by relief pitcher Marshall Bridges knocked Chance out in the third as the Senators exploded for six runs. Joe Cunningham and Frank Howard homered for Washington with Howard's shot landing off the mezzanine 460 feet from home plate in D.C. Stadium.

Whitey Ford, who had shut out the Senators for New York in his last start, quit after just one inning against the Tigers, saying simply that "he didn't have it."

If Ford didn't have it, Detroit's Joe Sparma sure did. The young right-hander drove in two runs with a double and limited the Yankees to five hits with Roger Maris' two-out homer in the ninth spoiling the shutout bid.

The Twins, who had eight homers and two victories in their first two games against the Red Sox in Fenway Park, ran into Dave Morehead. The youngster limited the heavy-hitting Twins to three hits until the ninth inning but got into a jam by loading the bases on three walks after striking out Harmon Killebrew to open the inning.

Dick Radatz, ineffective in relief so far this season, lumbered out of the Boston bullpen and ended the threat by fanning pinch-hitters Don Mincher and Sandy Valdespino.

Joe O'Brien, 47-year-old Canadian driver, has driven harness horses to one-mile races of two minutes or faster on 69 occasions.

MEMORIAL TROPHY — The Virginia Groom Memorial Trophy will be presented for the first time Sunday night at the Kiwanis Charity Horse Show. It will be an annual award.

Virginia Groom Memorial Trophy To Be Presented

The Virginia Groom Memorial Challenge Trophy is the name being given to the trophy honoring the late Mrs. Ned Groom who served as show secretary for the Kiwanis Charity Horse Show.

The trophy will be presented to the winner in the five-gaited stake class during the show being held Saturday and Sunday at the Fairgrounds.

Each year's five-gaited stake class winner will have his name engraved on the original trophy. He will also receive a smaller replica of the trophy.

Possession of the original trophy will remain with the local show unless or until one exhibitor wins the Stake Championship three times. In this case the exhibitor will be given permanent possession.

Mrs. Ned Groom, in whose memory the trophy has been presented by Mrs. C. G. Shulze, had a long interest in horses. She was a well known exhibitor in this area.

SHE faithfully attended most of shows in the tri-state area. She never missed an opportunity to encourage others in the breeding and showing of American Saddle Bred Horses.

Ten years ago Mrs. Grooms was one of a group of local people who organized the first 4-H Colt and Equitation club in the state. Since then many local 4-H members, through her interest have been encouraged to raise and show more and better horses.

Her advice and encouragement have helped the 4-H members to do well in this highly competitive project area even though Ohio now has more 4-H horses than any other project.

Mrs. Groom was also active in the organization of the Pickaway Saddle and Bridle Club in which she served as an officer or active member until her death in 1964.

When the Saddle and Bridle Club, along with Kiwanis, decided to organize and sponsor a

Ohio Holiday Fishing Chance 'Looks Good'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Division of Wildlife said today prospects for fishermen over the Memorial Day weekend "look good," with most waters in fair to good condition. Recent rains, however, have muddled some streams and lakes.

The outlook by areas: CENTRAL OHIO — Although there are no particular "hot spots" in this section most lakes and streams are producing well. A few of the good lakes are Buckeye, Kiser, Knox, Indian and Delaware. Bass, bluegills and catfish are doing well.

Stream fishing varies, some are cloudy, others are clear. Some trout are hitting in the Mad River.

NORTHWEST — Most stream are high and muddy from recent rainstorms but a few white bass and bullheads are being taken in the Sandusky, Portage and Maumee rivers. Water is clearing around Catawba, fishing is fair for perch. Findlay and Fostoria reservoirs are clear and normal and a few channel catfish and largemouth bass and walleyes are being caught.

NORTHEAST — The report from this section indicates virtually all waters are in good fishing condition. Bass, bluegills, catfish and crappies are biting in most lakes. Streams are mostly in good, clear condition.

SOUTHEAST — Clear and normal is the report from most areas in this section. Some of the "good producers" are Piedmont, Seneca, Hocking, Dillon, Vesuvius, Veto, and Alma lakes. Good fishing should be found in Hocking River, Walhonding, Muskingum and other tributary streams. A 56½-pound flathead catfish was taken this week from Piedmont.

SOUTHWEST — The best spots here are Grant, Stonelick, Cowan and Rocky Fork lakes. Bass, bluegills, catfish and some muskies are showing up. Best stream fishing will be in the following counties: Preble, Warren, Clermont and Adams.

Every time Groza scores a point—and he was only five points behind the NFL leader last season with a total of 115 points — the league records change. He is the all-time leading scorer with 1,102 points, and no one else is near him. The 1,102 does not include the 259 points The Toe scored from 1946 to 1949, when the Browns were in the old All-American Conference.

He needs to play in only three games to set a record for the most NFL games played — 177.

Willie Shoemaker has led the riders at Hollywood Park 15 times in the last 16 years.

Spring Sports Carnival Is Awaited

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Titles are on the line in four sports this weekend as Ohio's high school athletes shoot for honors in baseball, golf, tennis and track.

It's the annual two-day, four-sport spring carnival at Ohio State University's sprawling athletic plant.

The scholastic stars started firing early today in baseball and golf. Tennis play opens this afternoon and the 58th annual track and field spectacular is set for an all-day run Saturday.

New champions are assured in baseball and tennis but defending titlists return in golf and track with good shots at repeating.

Cincinnati Western Hills, 27-0 in regular season play and a two-time state champion, rates the favorite's role in Class AA baseball.

Catholic (18-4) and Rossford goes against Shaker Heights (20-5) in 1:30 p.m. contests.

In morning action involving smaller schools, Lucasville Valley (15-4) of Scioto County meets Powhatan (10-1) of Belmont County and Versailles (6-4) of Darke County faces Deshler (13-2) of Henry County. The finals in each class are set for 11 a.m. Saturday.

Randy Wertz of Toledo De-Vilbiss, who lost in the final round a year ago, and Worthington's Paul Mitchell, unbeaten in 17 starts, are cofavorites to cop the tennis crown.

Singles play this year has an international flavor with Nick Lidskog of Mansfield Madison, an exchange student from Sweden, vying for honor.

Ron Hollinger and Terry Brown of Mansfield Senior look like the duo to whip in doubles.

Barberton Northon, which took team honors last year and Ross Barty Jr. of Upper Arlington, who copped medalist laurels, return in the 36-hole golf match at OSU's Scarlet and Gray layouts.

Fourteen events in each division are slated Saturday in the track and field show. Dayton Dunbar and Fairport Harbor, which won the AA and A titles, respectively, try to retain their championships.

Stiff challenges are expected from Cleveland Glenview, Cleveland East Tech, Dayton Roosevelt and Upper Arlington in AA, and Warren Market, Frankfort and Marion Pleasant in the small-school division.

Some of the standouts to watch include Roosevelt's Mike Kennedy, Jim Calloway and Willie Peterson; Steve Korinchaf of Cleveland Rhoads, who set an all-time Ohio mark in the mile run with a 4:15.4 in last week's regional.

Class A cinder stars include Fairport's Mike Thomas in the hurdles; Marion's Larry Midlam in the mile events and Warren Market's Roy Frazier, defending Class A sprint king who won the 100, 220 and 440 in regional tests.

Top Racing Drivers Set For 500-Mile Speed Grind

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mr. James Clark Jr., O.B.E., a gentleman farmer of Duns, Scotland, and A. J. Foyt Jr., one of America's most distinguished high school dropouts, will start hub-to-hub in the 49th 500-mile Memorial Day auto race Monday.

It will be a head-on clash of the top men in two fields — Clark, 29, of the world road racing circuit, Foyt, 30, of the U.S. Auto Club's closed courses.

Clark made the Order of the British Empire on the queen's last birthday honors list. All Foyt made was a quarter million dollars last year.

Besides them in the first row, earned by posting best speeds in two weekends of record-cracking time trials, will be handsome Dan Gurney, 34, international competitor from Costa Mesa, Calif.

Gurney not only is a strong contender but also is godfather of the three British-American hybrid cars which will lead the 33-car running start about 11 a.m., EST, Monday.

He promoted the original meeting of Colin Chapman of London, builder of the Lotus chassis, and Ford Motor Co. engineers, who provided a special V-8 engine.

OU, OSU To Meet in Baseball Test

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—It may be a case of the irresistible force meeting the immovable object when Ohio State and Ohio University meet in the District 4 NCAA Baseball Tournament here today.

The two powerhouses advanced to the second round of play with victories over out-of-state opponents Thursday.

The Buckeyes, Big Ten champions, easily dropped Ball State of Indiana, 4-0, behind the three-hit pitching of John Durant.

The Mid-American Conference champion Bobcats squeaked by Detroit, 7-6.

The two Ohio teams meet at 1 p.m. today following a morning contest in the losers bracket between Detroit and Ball State. The loser of the first game will drop out of the double-elimination tournament.

Later in the afternoon, the loser of the Ohio State-Ohio U. game will meet the winner of the Detroit-Ball State contest.

The Buckeyes now are 24-11 for the season.

Thursday's win was the 22nd straight for the Bobcats, giving them a season mark of 28-1.

Pitcher Tom Murphy picked up his tenth victory of the season against no setbacks, but did so with the help of relief pitching in the ninth, when Detroit stranded two men on the bags.

Practice Scheduled

Kochheiser Hardware Babe Ruth baseball team will practice 6 p. m. today and will play a practice game at 9 a. m. tomorrow it was announced by team manager, Sam Weller.

Weller said players should report at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow.

First Taste of War Given Airborne Brigade

VUNG TAU, South Viet Nam (AP) — Girls in bikinis were sunning and surfing as the three companies of paratroopers flew over this seaside resort. Artillery and bombs sounded sharply 15 miles away, softening up the landing zone.

The 173rd Airborne Brigade had landed in Viet Nam early this month. On Wednesday helicopters carried the 503rd Regiment's 1st Battalion into its first action against the Viet Cong. It was a frustrating experience with an elusive human enemy and relentless natural foes.

Sniper fire greeted the helicopters as they landed, then the guerrillas faded away. The men moved off in steaming tropical heat, two companies clambering up and over huge boulders toward the hills, the third moving through the valleys.

One man sprained an ankle. "Sure, I can go on. I'm airborne," he told his commander and hobbled off.

Throughout the afternoon the troops fought clinging jungle vines and thorns. Mosquitoes attacked in swarms. Faces, hands and arms were streaked with blood from bites and the snags of thorns and vines. But at times the vines came in handy as the heavily loaded troops pulled themselves up sheer rocks and cliffs.

A heavy tropical rain set in at dark, making things cooler but making the bush and the rocks slippery. The paratroopers still wore smooth-soled jump boots though they hope to be issued cleated jungle boots soon.

They found an abandoned Viet Cong lookout with an excellent view of the airfield at Vung Tau and the highway leading from the town. They blew up the post and moved on up into the hills, struggling over the rain-slick rocks with their 50-caliber machine guns, bazookas, mortars and ammunition.

They bedded down for the night in a downpour. The day's pouring sweat turned into shivering cold. No fires or smoking were permitted. A helicopter hovered over a hacked clearing and dropped C rations and Jerry cans of water.

During the night the Americans could hear Vietnamese artillery firing near by and one firefight between Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

At daybreak they moved off again and saw a man perched in the trees, peering through foliage apparently as an observer for the Viet Cong. The troops held their fire, under orders not to open up unless they could see a weapon. He vanished in the thick bush.

A few minutes later the lead men approached an intersection of trails and there were sharp bursts of automatic fire. One fell with bullet wounds in the shoulder and side, the other threw himself into the bush after taking hits beneath his arm. The remainder of the company charged into the bush with weapons blazing. That ended that Viet Cong attack.

The company moved on and again came under fire, this time from a big Buddhist pagoda on top of a hill. They charged up the steep slope — "just like Monte Cassino," one trooper shouted — but found no one.

At the end of the two-day operation the battalion had nine men wounded. They had taken one suspect and believed they had killed two Viet Cong. They couldn't get any other way and a new idea of the job they face.

Board Members Wear Many Hats

Find a man who is an expert on the latest teaching methods. Make sure he is qualified to judge new building techniques. Check his ability to deal with the public. Give him the patience of a saint and the tact of Solomon. Then, try to get him to serve on his local school board.

Obviously such paragons are few and far between. But the typical school board member is expected to meet these and many more qualifications.

There are almost 150,000 school board members according to the National School Boards Association. Ninety per cent of them are men. Almost half are college graduates, and 92 per cent have at least a high school diploma. They are usually elected rather than appointed and about 60 per cent serve for four, five or six-year terms.

Although school board members are not usually selected on the basis of their occupations, it is interesting to note that 25 per cent are business owners, officials and managers, and 27 per cent are involved in professional and technical services. Farmers rank third, accounting for 12 per cent, and housewives are fourth with seven per cent.

The board member is usually expected to give his time — about two evenings each week — and energy without salary. He is reimbursed for any expenses such as travel which are directly related to his duties on the school board.

Most of the school boards are small, although they range in size from three to 19 members. Slightly more than 50 per cent have five members however, and about 25 per cent have seven members.

Sixty-eight per cent of the nation's school boards open all their meetings to the public, another 26 per cent hold both open and closed meetings, and six per cent sit only in closed session.

LONDON (AP)—London television watchers seem to prefer white rhinos to pop singers.

As an experiment, commercial ITV in the London area started showing at peak time Thursdays (7:30 to 8 p. m.) a program series on the presentation of wild life.

The audience jumped by 80,000 homes compared with the previous screening of pop singers.

The rival BBC continued showing "Top of the Pops" at that time. Its viewing, according to ratings, was 180,000 homes less.

Audience Prefers Wild Life TV

LONDON (AP)—London television watchers seem to prefer white rhinos to pop singers.

As an experiment, commercial ITV in the London area started showing at peak time Thursdays (7:30 to 8 p. m.) a program series on the presentation of wild life.

The audience jumped by 80,000 homes compared with the previous screening of pop singers.

The rival BBC continued showing "Top of the Pops" at that time. Its viewing, according to ratings, was 180,000 homes less.

Guitars Lead by 10 to 1

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — There is a sad lack of string players, commented Donald Voorhees, director of the Bell Telephone Hour orchestra, while speaking to students at Limestone High School.

"It's all very well to tootle a clarinet and march between the halves of a football game, but what does this person do at 30 or 35, when he can't fit into his high school uniform?"

"If persons would instead learn string instruments, they could play string quartets at their homes and would be developing a greater appreciation for a wider range of music than their tootling counterparts," he said.

If there is an overabundance of any kind of instrumentalists, it must be guitarists.

Voorhees said guitars outsell all other instruments by 10 to one.

Merlin the Exporter

LONDON (AP) — Jack Hughes says his export business is booming.

"New York wants 12 of my magic totem poles and three sawing through a woman," he added. "Belgium and Puerto Rico have ordered three sword suspensions. Kuala Lumpur wants a cage for vanishing six doves, and a big new market is opening up in Africa."

Hughes works 16 hours a day, making magical illusions.

"Magic has its fashions like everything else," he says. "The current trend in Britain is for dog magic."

Apollo Men Get Light Without Bulbs

NEEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — Electronic display instruments in electroluminescence will slip Apollo astronauts to a safe landing on the moon.

The instruments will consist of five numerical digit displays on a 2 by 4-inch flat surface. The numbers will indicate changes in the speed of which the moon craft is traveling.

Electroluminescence creates light through the excitation of phosphors in an electrical field. No bulbs or filaments are used in construction and, unlike electro-mechanical instruments, they are not affected by irregular gravity fields.

Sylvania, which has been a pioneer in development of electroluminescence, has been awarded a contract for the instruments by Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., which is developing the moon ship.

Antimouse Drive Held in Hungary

BUDAPEST (AP) — Hungarian children have been urged to help rid the country of mice — a major pest which is threatening this year's harvest.

The antimouse drive was ordered by the Hungarian Ministry of Agriculture. The entire rural population — children included — have been asked to take part.

Hungary's considerable mouse population caused several hundred million dollars damage to the agriculture last year, deputy agriculture minister Janos Keszler said in an article in the Hungarian Communist Party daily Nepszabadsag recently.

The harvest census showed that their numbers have increased alarmingly meanwhile.

NEEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — Electronic display instruments in electroluminescence will help Apollo astronauts to a safe landing on the moon.

The instruments will consist of five numerical digit displays on a 2 by 4-inch flat surface. The numbers will indicate changes in the speed of which the moon craft is traveling.

Electroluminescence creates light through the excitation of phosphors in an electrical field. No bulbs or filaments are used in construction and, unlike electro-mechanical instruments, they are not affected by irregular gravity fields.

Sylvania, which has been a pioneer in development of electroluminescence, has been awarded a contract for the instruments by Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., which is developing the moon ship.

Antimouse Drive Held in Hungary

BUDAPEST (AP) — Hungarian children have been urged to help rid the country of mice — a major pest which is threatening this year's harvest.

The antimouse drive was ordered by the Hungarian Ministry of Agriculture. The entire rural population — children included — have been asked to take part.

Hungary's considerable mouse population caused several hundred million dollars damage to the agriculture last year, deputy agriculture minister Janos Keseru said in an article in the Hungarian Communist Party daily Nepszabadsag recently.

The harvest census showed that their numbers have increased alarmingly meanwhile.

"Of course, I was the one who wrote the President about Twenty," said Mrs. Leo L. Wexler, the bluish bird's owner.

Twenty competed with eight other parakeets. His first prize wasn't exactly bird seed — $150.

Libraries Lag in Britain

LONDON (AP) — University libraries in Britain are lagging behind those in the United States says the British Library Association.

The Association says the libraries are "not adequate to meet even the present demands made on them by students," and proposes more government aid to university and college library facilities.

Several comparisons between United States and British libraries were made by the group. Only two university libraries in the United Kingdom have more than one million volumes as compared with 32 universities in the U.S.

The average expenditure per student on library materials in the seven largest universities was only $67.20 in Britain in 1960-61. In the U.S., $176.40 was spent on each student's library materials in 1961-62.

The Association, in a report to the Minister of Education, noted there is a lack of original materials available for research, since these materials are bought by foreign individuals and institutions. "It is a sad and shaming prospect to envisage that this country will have to send a growing number of its students overseas to do their work on material of British origin," the report added.

Oldest Pear Tree Is Preserved

JERSEYVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Illinois is carefully preserving its oldest pear tree.

The tree, along with other nursery stock, was brought to Jersey County in a covered wagon 135 years ago by Dr. Ralph H. Van Pelt, a native of New Jersey. The pear tree still flourishes, and this year was a solid mass of white blossoms in late April.

The tree is located four miles northeast of Jerseyville, on land now owned by Frank Loy.

Graduated Himself

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A correspondent student's lesson came back to the office at the University of Colorado. On it the Canon City post office had stamped, "Return to Sender. Moved. Left No Address." In one corner a state prison official had penciled one word, "Escaped."

Marine Men Probe Death Of Dolphins

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — Marine scientists are puzzled over the apparent mass suicide of 95 dolphins in the antishark nets laid off this eastern seaport's beaches.

They are investigating the theory that something interfered with the dolphins' delicate underwater direction — finding equipment. Dolphins usually emit high - pitched squeaks which help them to detect and avoid obstacles.

All 95 dolphins drowned. They are mammals and must surface regularly to breathe.

One clue being closely studied is that the dead dolphins had sardines in their stomachs. While chasing a shoal of sardines the dolphins may have temporarily "switched off" their underwater "radar," said a spokesman for the South African Marine Biological Research Institute.

Dolphins are frequently sighted off Durban but they seldom parallel to the coastline, 500 become entangled in the nylon yards from shore.
